The President: We'll Talk Barring Double-Cross

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says despite the massive Communist offensive in South Vietnam he will halt bombing of the North, start peace talks tomorrow and let the enemy "write the agenda" —if Hanoi doesn't try a double-cross.

This was Johnson's off-the-cuff reaction Monday when 1 of 11 college student visitors at the White House argued that campus antiwar demonstrators "are not just the unwashed" but include brilliant young people.

Rep. Roman C. Pucinski D-Ill., earlier told a Chicago audience a presidential emissary was in Hanoi to discuss a possible bombing halt and negotiations to end the war when Communists attacked the U.S. Embassy in Saigon last month.

Pucinski said: "As a matter of fact, the U.S. had to stop the bombing of Hanoi to assure safe passage for the emissary," whom he declined to name.

But he said the emissary was still in Hanoi "as far as we know and he may still be talking to the North Vietnamese."

The White House and State Department declined comment.

Johnson said he thought he understood youthful Vietnam dissenters—"none of us want to die" — but declared "we have gone just as far as decent and honorable people can go" to seek a Vietnam peace.

It was a spontaneous presidential performance — 75 minutes of it—in a White House sitting room. With five reporters watching and taking notes, Johnson opened himself to all questions and, in answering, paced, gesticulated, grimaced and orated with more emotion than is normal in his public appearances.

Despite the bloody fracture of the planned Tet truce, Johnson said of the Communists:

"We would meet them tomorrow. But we are not going to surrender. We are willing to reason. We are willing to talk. We are willing to let them write the agenda and say, 'Here are the first subjects you talk about.' "

White House officials made it clear later the United States would expect to cover its own preferred topics later in any negotiations.

But he added some qualifications inherent in his earlier utterances on the subject: Talks would have to be prompt, productive and — in effect, he addressed Hanoi directly—"you will not take advantage like you did in the Tet."

Johnson, reaffirming and possibly broadening by a fraction his earlier-stated San Antonio formula for peace talks, said his 1967 offer along much the same lines was answered with the Communist offensive during the Tet New Year holiday—"a sacred day"—against 44 cities and 24 U.S. air bases.

Johnson's free-wheeling remarks on Vietnam were prompted by a question asked by Richard Bearhs, a University of California at Berkeley student who wanted to know how the President felt about campus dissenters.

"They sadden me, they trouble me—I think because I know how they feel," the President replied.

Johnson said it would be a "very unusual student" who wasn't concerned, wasn't seeking a quick solution to the war, and wasn't seeking an alternative.

Hue Resistance Continues Strong

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese Marines launched a ground assault against strong enemy forces inside the walled Citadel at Hue today, but heavy small-arms, machine-gun and rocket fire drove them back.

The North Vietnamese troops fought from gunpits burrowed deep inside the grimy black stone walls of the inner Citadel in the former imperial capital 400 miles northeast of Saigon.

No Air Support

AP photographer Al Chang reported from Hue that the sky had cleared after two weeks of monsoon rains, but no air support was flown for the Marines today. Air strikes had been flown against enemy positions in the Citadel Monday, and there was no immediate explanation why no planes were in the air today.

"Where the hell is our air support?" one Marine asked Chang bitterly after the costly, unsuccessful assault on the Citadel's inner walls. "We are being choppd up."

More than 1,000 U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops were tightening the vise beside the north bank of the Perfume River. On the south bank, in Hue's modern quarter the Americans had regained control, and the population crept out of refugee camps and shell-marked homes to bury the dead in hastily dug graves.

Little can be done about the barrage of antiwar propaganda being sent to grieving American women who have lost husbands and sons in Vietnam. Story on Page 3.

"The situation in Hue the last three days is generally the same," a U.S. spokesman said in Saigon. "They are holding out along the south wall of the Citadel with their extremely strong point at the southwest corner."

Allied spokesmen said that the 14 days of fighting in Hue have cost the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong 2,393 dead, about half of them inside the Citadel. South Vietnamese casualties were reported moderate, meaning the government force was hard hit. There was no announcement of U.S. casualties.

Hue, 400 miles northeast of Saigon, is the last of 35 South Vietnamese cities and towns where Communist forces are still fighting as organized units two weeks after the start of their biggest offensive of the war. It has cost them, by government count, 32,245 men killed, or more than half of the 60,000 troops U.S. officers believe they committed to the offensive.

Citadel Attacker Downed

Military spokesmen said the Communists on Monday shot down a South Vietnamese Air Force A1 Skyraider bombing and strafing the Citadel, the two-mile-square fortress which was the seat of Vietnam's 19th century emperors. The pilot parachuted unhurt and the plane crashed outside the city.

Communist gunners also shelled and attacked the staging area of a government engineering battalion and the headquarters of an infantry division in Hue. The attacks were repulsed and the enemy left behind three dead, a government military spokesman said, while South Vietnamese losses were one killed and four wounded.

Blasted Into Retreat

Four miles northwest of Hue, 300 communist troops clashed with infantrymen from the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division in a two-hour battle that left 30 enemy and five Americans dead. The communists were blasted into retreat as night fell by artillery and naval gunfire from offshore destroyers and cruisers. Thirty-nine American infantrymen were wounded.

Near Gio Linh, three miles below the eastern end of the demilitarized zone, South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 32 Communist troops. Government losses were five dead and 11 wounded.

Mop Up Continues

In Saigon, U.S. and South Vitnamese troops continued to mop up the remnants of Communist forces who attacked the city Jan. 31. The allies reported killing 126 Viet Cong in a series of clashes within a 20-mile arc around the capital. American losses were 13 killed and 48 wounded.

U.S. B52 bombers joined the massive operation to wipe out Communist troops still entrenched around Saigon. The big Stratofortresses hit closer to Saigon than ever before, unloading tons of bombs on suspected Communist troop concentrations only seven miles north-northeast of the capital.

National police announced that Maj. Gen. Tran Do, one of the highest ranking North Vietnamese military officers in South Vietnam, was killed in the Saigon fighting recently.

The U.S. Embassy said Do was deputy commander of the political office of the Communists' Central Committee for South Vietnam and had been identified in recently captured Viet Cong documents as the deputy commander in chief of the "Liberation Army of South Vietnam."

Maj. Nguyen Dinh Loan, chief of the special staff of the national police, said a body found at the western edge of Saigon had been identified as Gen. Do's. Other Vietnamese officials were not sure, and U.S. Officials said they could not confirm the reports.

Buddhists Accused

The militantly antigovernment Buddhist movement centered in Hue was accused of collaborating with the invading Communists by Lt. Col. Phan Van Khoa, the provincial chief. Phan, who hid in a hospital attic during the Communist siege, said the large Tu Dam pagoda five miles northwest of the city was the Red command post for the attack. U.S. sources confirmed this.

Phan said the Communists inside Hue operated from the Dieu De pagoda and gave prominent roles to the Buddhist militants and sympathetic students at Hue University. U.S. officials were reluctant to back up Phan's points, although they reportedly have amassed impressive evidence to show the involvement of the Buddhist militants.

Rocky's Dilemma -- Was He Right?

By GERRY MCLAUGHLIN

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Balking Senate Republicans were on notice today from their majority leader either to ratify the plan by which Gov. Rockefeller ended the New York City garbage strike or produce another solution.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges raised that challenge near the end of a Monday session in which the Republican governor was rocked by two developments.

Despite denials by the GOP leadership, many Republican lawmakers bridled at the prospect of passing the governor's plan for a temporary state takeover of the city sanitation department. And the reluctance was strong enough to force postponement of a vote.

Assembly Democrats contributed to the governor's discomfort by refusing him permission to make a personal appeal for his plan before a joint Senate-Assembly session.

Democrats said that, while they were prepared to support the Rockefeller plan, they saw no reason for what they regarded as a Rockefeller show.

Frustrated in that move, the governor turned to television.

In a 10-minute talk delivered from a Schenectady TV studio and piped into New York City, he recited again his reasons for refusing to send the National Guard into the city and for taking the approach in question.

State newspaper editors express criticism of Gov. Rockefeller's takeover of N. Y. Sanitation Dept. Story on Page 18.

His face pale and weary, Rockefeller, in effect, told New York Mayor John V. Lindsay he was welcome to take back the responsibility for solving the problem by certifying "he can handle the situation without assistance from the state."

Aroused by Criticism

Aroused by Lindsay's criticism of his handling of the matter, Rockefeller reminded the public and the Legislature that he had not stepped into the strike until after Lindsay pleaded for state assistance.

Ninety minutes after he spoke on television and radio, the governor sent the Legislature a bill that would empower the governor, acting through the state health commissioner, to take over any municipal agency when necessary to correct nuisances threatening safety of life and health."

The Assembly's Democratic majority discussed it at a closed conference, and Speaker Anthony J. Travia reported that, while no formal stand was taken, his members appeared "generally favorable."

Since the Assembly was waiting for the Senate to act first, both houses then adjourned until this afternoon.

Brydges said he told his GOP colleagues to think it over and consider possible alternatives—"not just to take a negative attitude."

If the Legislature rejects the Rockefeller plan, Brydges said, it will have an obligation to come up with another solution.

The Only Solution

"This is the only solution that I have seen that's viable," Brydges said of the governor's proposal.

Rockefeller had persuaded the city's sanitation workers to return to their jobs on a promise that the state would give them a pay raise of $425 a year — $25 more than Lindsay would allow. The cost would be charged back to the city.

Many Republicans in both houses agreed with Lindsay that Rockefeller had caved in to union blackmail and intruded on the city's right to handle its own affairs.

4 Dead in Dutchess Fire

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Dense smoke and intense heat from fire that gutted the living room of their two-family frame home on Manchester Road (Route 55) in the Dutchess County township of LaGrange early today, snuffed out the lives of four members of a family and temporarily felled two others who escaped with their lives.

Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan said the fire erupted in the first floor front room of the home of Chester Van Tassell, 46, on Manchester Road just east of Noxon Road shortly before 3:30 a. m.

Neighbors discovered the fire a few minutes later and notified LaGrangeville fire officials who sounded the alarm. Fire units from the district sped to the scene and on arrival found dense, black smoke pouring from the two-story frame residence.

Sheriff Quinlan reported that Jack Gardner, the first volunteer firemen to arrive at the burning house, groped his way through smoke outside and pounded on the doors and windows in an attempt to arouse the six occupants.

Van Tassell and his wife, Elizabeth, 38, and two of their children, Raymond Francis, 11, and Tammy, 3, were apparently already overcome by the smoke before firemen arrived. "They probably never regained consciousness, and they never knew what was happening," the sheriff said. They were all found by firemen on the second floor of their home.

Ambulances from LaGrangeville and Arlington carried the victims to the hospitals in the city of Poughkeepsie.

Two Find Way to Window

Two other sons of the Van Tassells, Chester, 18, and Harry L. Van Tassell, 13, apparently had heard the shouts of Volunteer Gardner and although suffering from the smoke and in a semi-conscious condition they were able to find their way to a window in their bedroom.

Sheriff Quinlan said the two survivors of the early morning blaze, crawled through the window to a roof where firemen rushed to their aid on ladders and assisted them to the ground. The two youths were carried to Vassar Hospital by ambulances and treated for smoke inhalation and shock. Their condition was listed as satisfactory.

Van Tassell and Raymond were pronounced dead upon arrival at the same hospital. Mrs. Van Tassell and Tammy were dead on arrival at St. Francis' Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Blame Space Heater

County Medical Examiner Dr. Chester H. Golding of Wappingers Falls, investigated the tragic fire with Sheriff Quinlan and Chief Investigator Charles Borchers of the sheriff's office.

Dr. Golding later gave a verdict of accidental death. He said the four victims died of asphyxiation, due to smoke inhalation.

LaGrangeville Fire Chief Harold Krom said the fire was caused by a kerosene space heater in the ground floor living room. He said firemen confined the damage by fire to that area, although heavy smoke and heat damage resulted throughout the house.

Melted Telephone

Noting the intensity of the heat, Sheriff Quinlan said the heat in the upstairs room where the two survivors were sleeping when the fire broke out "was so intense it melted the telephone." He added, "the two survivors were fortunate to be alert enough to realize the existing danger and were able to escape through the window, although they were groggy from the smoke when firemen reached them on the roof."

Van Tassell, who had resided in the Poughkeepsie area with his family for many years, was employed in the maintenance department at the Fargo Manufacturing Co. plant.

Sheriff Quinlan praised the quick action of volunteer firemen in quelling the flames and confining the fire damage to the living room area.

County Budget Awaits Governor's Signature

By ALBERT CAWEIN

A bill approved unanimously in the State Assemby late Monday needs only the governor's signature to legalize, ratify and confirm Ulster County's $15 million budget.

A companion bill, introduced by Ulster Assemblymn Kenneth L. Wilson, extending the deadline for payment of taxes to Feb. 10 also passed unanimously but must go through the Senate before it can be sent to the governor.

Unanimous Support

Senate Bill 936, validating the budget, was introduced by Sen. Jay R. Rolison Jr., R-Ulster-Dutchess, and cleared the Senate last month. To expedite matters the Senate Bill was moved to the Assembly where it was approved unanimously yesterday despite reports that there might be difficulty from the Democratic majority. Rolison's bill passed by a strict party vote in the GOP-controlled Senate.

Attorney Sherwood E. Davis, executive assistant to Wilson, said the Assembly bill cleared at 5 p. m. yesterday and the measure for the extension of deadline was sent to the Senate at the same time.

Approval of the deadline extension for payment of taxes without penalty will present a problem of refunds for townships that recognized Jan. 31, the original deadline date as final day for payment of taxes without penalty. The penalty was 1 per cent.

County Attorney Abram F. Molyneaux said this morning that he had advised the collectors of the towns involved to keep separate accounts of the 1 per cent interest payments. If this precaution has been heeded it will be a simple matter to make the refunds to those taxpayers who did not meet the Jan. 31 deadline and consequently paid a 1 per cent penalty.

Molyneaux said that several townships for several years now had kept separate accounts for the interest and therefore did not have any problem when the legal deadline date was questioned.

Validation of the budget by the State Legislature was necessary because the budget was delayed in preparation beyond the deadline for publication of the public hearing.

As no copies of the preliminary budget were available prior to the public hearing, the old Board of Supervisors postponed the budget hearing one week. As this was beyond the mandatory deadline date for adoption under state law, the delayed budget approved Dec. 28 required validation by the Legislature to avoid a taxpayer's suit.

Tribute to Wilson: Savago

County Legislative Chairman Peter J. Savago said today he was glad the unfortunate incident with the budget is over and he said there were never any doubts in his mind that the measure would pass in the Assembly.

Savago, who was in the Assembly Chamber when the measure was passed, said it was a great tribute to Ken Wilson that the bill was passed unanimously in the body that is Democrat-controlled. His fellow legislators on both sides of the aisle showed their respect for his leadership, Savago said.

Thousands of Ballots

With 3,758 votes cast for our lovely six finalists, it proves that despite the pressure of weighty world affairs and problems we still have time for youth, beauty and light-heartedness.

The 1968 Page One Valentine contest would not have been possible without the initial interest of 78 girls in Ulster and Greene Counties. Their photographs launched the contest making the choice of six finalists a difficult one for judges Robert Gallo, acting mayor of Kingston, Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, honorary president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Inc., John Kruh, Freeman staff photographer, and Dorothy A. Narel, Freeman woman's page editor.

The interest and cooperation of the girls making the finals was most gratifying with each deserving a crown in her right. A deserved "thank you" is in order, therefore, for Eileen Fisher, Christina Swanson, Mary Ann Marintsch, Nancy Beckert, Valerie Adin, and Dorothy C. Metcalf, all of whom have been anxiously awaiting the 11th hour and the final decision.

The girl who claims the crown tomorrow will be recipient of 25 gifts from some of Ulster's finest businessmen. Her photograph will appear on page one of Wednesday's newspaper and she will reign as this county's Valentine.

She will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond from The Freeman in addition to gifts from the following cooperating merchants:

Doreen's Bridals and Formals, 297 Wall Street; Wallace's, Albany Avenue; Rowe's Shoe Store, 34 John Street; Salvucci's Restaurant, West Hurley; Goldman's, 1 Main Street; Gladys Hathmaker, 290 Fair Street; Kaye's Sportwair, 328 Wall Street; Leventhal's, 288 Wall Street; London's, 33 N. Front Street; Cricket Shop, 356 Broadway; Rose Shop, 29 N. Front Street; Up-To-Date Company, 330 Wall Street; Charles Beauty Salon, 304 Wall Street; Joseph's Hair Stylists, Saugerties; Dedrick's Pharmacy, 308 Wall Street; United Pharmacy, 329 Wall Street; Schneider's Jewelers, 290 Wall Street; Sears Roebuck and Company, Kingston Plaza; Governor Clinton Pharmacy, 236 Clinton Avenue; Gold's 322 Wall Street; Safford and Scudder, 310 Wall Street; Nugent's, Kingston Plaza; Britts, Kingston Plaza; House of Reynolds, Ferry Street, Saugerties; and Hy Greenspan of Kingston.

To all — the contestants, merchants, voters, photographers John Kruh and Bob Haines, and to the weary ballot counters, Joan Woinoski and Diane Norton, a sincere "thank you."

Two other sons of the Van Tassells, Chester, 18, and Harry L. Van Tassell, 13, apparently had heard the shouts of Volunteer Gardner and although suffering from the smoke and in a semi-conscious condition they were able to find their way to a window in their bedroom.

Sheriff Quinlan said the two survivors of the early morning blaze, crawled through the window to a roof where firemen rushed to their aid on ladders and assisted them to the ground. The two youths were carried to Vassar Hospital by ambulances and treated for smoke inhalation and shock. Their condition was listed as satisfactory.

Van Tassell and Raymond were pronounced dead upon arrival at the same hospital. Mrs. Van Tassell and Tammy were dead on arrival at St. Francis' Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Blame Space Heater

County Medical Examiner Dr. Chester H. Golding of Wappingers Falls, investigated the tragic fire with Sheriff Quinlan and Chief Investigator Charles Borchers of the sheriff's office.

Dr. Golding later gave a verdict of accidental death. He said the four victims died of asphyxiation, due to smoke inhalation.

LaGrangeville Fire Chief Harold Krom said the fire was caused by a kerosene space heater in the ground floor living room. He said firemen confined the damage by fire to that area, although heavy smoke and heat damage resulted throughout the house.

Melted Telephone

Noting the intensity of the heat, Sheriff Quinlan said the heat in the upstairs room where the two survivors were sleeping when the fire broke out "was so intense it melted the telephone." He added, "the two survivors were fortunate to be alert enough to realize the existing danger and were able to escape through the window, although they were groggy from the smoke when firemen reached them on the roof."

Van Tassell, who had resided in the Poughkeepsie area with his family for many years, was employed in the maintenance department at the Fargo Manufacturing Co. plant.

Sheriff Quinlan praised the quick action of volunteer firemen in quelling the flames and confining the fire damage to the living room area.

County Budget Awaits Governor's Signature

By ALBERT CAWEIN

A bill approved unanimously in the State Assemby late Monday needs only the governor's signature to legalize, ratify and confirm Ulster County's $15 million budget.

A companion bill, introduced by Ulster Assemblymn Kenneth L. Wilson, extending the deadline for payment of taxes to Feb. 10 also passed unanimously but must go through the Senate before it can be sent to the governor.

Unanimous Support

Senate Bill 936, validating the budget, was introduced by Sen. Jay R. Rolisen Jr., R-Ulster-Dutchess, and cleared the Senate last month. To expedite matters the Senate Bill was moved to the Assembly where it was approved unanimously yesterday despite reports that there might be difficulty from the Democratic majority. Rolison's bill passed by a strict party vote in the GOP-controlled Senate.

Attorney Sherwood E. Davis, executive assistant to Wilson, said the Assembly bill cleared at 5 p. m. yesterday and the measure for the extension of deadline was sent to the Senate at the same time.

Approval of the deadline extension for payment of taxes without penalty will present a problem of refunds for townships that recognized Jan. 31, the original deadline date as final day for payment of taxes without penalty. The penalty was 1 per cent.

County Attorney Abram F. Molyneaux said this morning that he had advised the collectors of the towns involved to keep separate accounts of the 1 per cent interest payments. If this precaution has been heeded it will be a simple matter to make the refunds to those taxpayers who did not meet the Jan. 31 deadline and consequently paid a 1 per cent penalty.

Molyneaux said that several townships for several years now had kept separate accounts for the interest and therefore did not have any problem when the legal deadline date was questioned.

Validation of the budget by the State Legislature was necessary because the budget was delayed in preparation beyond the deadline for publication of the public hearing.

As no copies of the preliminary budget were available prior to the public hearing, the old Board of Supervisors postponed the budget hearing one week. As this was beyond the mandatory deadline date for adoption under state law, the delayed budget approved Dec. 28 required validation by the Legislature to avoid a taxpayer's suit.

Tribute to Wilson: Savago

County Legislative Chairman Peter J. Savago said today he was glad the unfortunate incident with the budget is over and he said there were never any doubts in his mind that the measure would pass in the Assembly.

Savago, who was in the Assembly Chamber when the measure was passed, said it was a great tribute to Ken Wilson that the bill was passed unanimously in the body that is Democrat-controlled. His fellow legislators on both sides of the aisle showed their respect for his leadership, Savago said.

Thousands of Ballots

With 3,758 votes cast for our lovely six finalists, it proves that despite the pressure of weighty world affairs and problems we still have time for youth, beauty and light-heartedness.

The 1968 Page One Valentine contest would not have been possible without the initial interest of 78 girls in Ulster and Greene Counties. Their photographs launched the contest making the choice of six finalists a difficult one for judges Robert Gallo, acting mayor of Kingston, Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, honorary president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Inc., John Kruh, Freeman staff photographer, and Dorothy A. Narel, Freeman woman's page editor.

The interest and cooperation of the girls making the finals was most gratifying with each deserving a crown in her right. A deserved "thank you" is in order, therefore, for Eileen Fisher, Christina Swanson, Mary Ann Marintsch, Nancy Beckert, Valerie Adin, and Dorothy C. Metcalf, all of whom have been anxiously awaiting the 11th hour and the final decision.

The girl who claims the crown tomorrow will be recipient of 25 gifts from some of Ulster's finest businessmen. Her photograph will appear on page one of Wednesday's newspaper and she will reign as this county's Valentine.

She will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond from The Freeman in addition to gifts from the following cooperating merchants:

Doreen's Bridals and Formals, 297 Wall Street; Wallace's, Albany Avenue; Rowe's Shoe Store, 34 John Street; Salvucci's Restaurant, West Hurley; Goldman's, 1 Main Street; Gladys Hathmaker, 290 Fair Street; Kaye's Sportwair, 328 Wall Street; Leventhal's, 288 Wall Street; London's, 33 N. Front Street; Cricket Shop, 356 Broadway; Rose Shop, 29 N. Front Street; Up-To-Date Company, 330 Wall Street; Charles Beauty Salon, 304 Wall Street; Joseph's Hair Stylists, Saugerties; Dedrick's Pharmacy, 308 Wall Street; United Pharmacy, 329 Wall Street; Schneider's Jewelers, 290 Wall Street; Sears Roebuck and Company, Kingston Plaza; Governor Clinton Pharmacy, 236 Clinton Avenue; Gold's 322 Wall Street; Safford and Scudder, 310 Wall Street; Nugent's, Kingston Plaza; Britts, Kingston Plaza; House of Reynolds, Ferry Street, Saugerties; and Hy Greenspan of Kingston.

To all — the contestants, merchants, voters, photographers John Kruh and Bob Haines, and to the weary ballot counters, Joan Woinoski and Diane Norton, a sincere "thank you."

Unions Near Agreement To Ease Discrimination

By NEIL GILBRIDE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO construction unions and federal officials were reported close today to agreeing on a set of rules to admit more Negroes into the unions in an attempt to ease longstanding complaints of racial discrimination.

Sources indicated the proposed agreement would withhold tough government sanctions as long as the 18 building trades unions moved successfully on a voluntary basis to open their doors wider to Negroes and other minority groups.

"I think it looks pretty good," said Plumbers Union President Peter T. Schoemann of the chances for solving the issue, which has long been a sore point between Johnson administration officials and the politically powerful labor movement.

The construction unions have been the target of numerous racial bias charges from civil rights groups.

Presidents of the 18 unions of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, representing some 3.5 million workers, reportedly were ready to act on a final draft of proposed regulations worked out with the Labor Department.

Sources said the proposed agreement would assure the building trades against any government requirement for a certain quota of Negroes in the union's or their apprenticeship training programs.

The unions bitterly opposed previous Labor Department antidiscrimination proposals which they said would have imposed a quota system on them.

Schoemann a year ago was instrumental in killing one Labor Department proposal that would have required regular reports on how many Negroes were enrolled in unions' apprenticeship programs.

"We think the best results would come from a better rapport between top officials of the Labor Department and the building trades," said C. J. Haggerty, president of the trades department at a meeting here.

Haggerty, Schoemann, and several other key union officials have been working for months on the proposed new antidiscrimination plan with Secretary of Labor Department Solicitor Charles Donahue.

Haggerty indicated the proposal would embody a continuing top-level committee of unions and Labor Department officials to try to solve discrimination complaints.

While avoiding any quota formula and emphasizing voluntary action by the unions, the proposed agreement reportedly includes provisions for the Labor Department to press discrimination complaints if a union fails to act.

Marvella Hits GOP on the Medicaid Cuts

Joseph A. Marvella, seeking the Liberal Party nomination for the State Senate in Dutchess and Ulster County's 38th District, said that, "The Republican campaign to cut the heart out of the Medicaid program is a good example of why they could never be called a party of the people."

Marvella, a resident of Poughkeepsie, claims that the Republicans, in order "to save middle and high income taxpayers a relatively small amount of money . . . are willing to callously sacrifice millions of New Yorkers to a life of poor health, untreated illness, perpetual debt, or all of these sad situations."

The Poughkeepsie barber declared that GOPers "want to cut the eligibility limit for a family of four to $5,300. Yet the U.S. Dept. of Commerce, on Oct. 25, 1967, issued a report estimating that just plain living . . . costs a family of four $7,329 a year.

"There's an awfully big spread between that figure and $5,300," said Marvella.

He went on to question, "How do the Republicans expect those families in the middle to make the medical scene? Rockefeller, Brydges, Rolison and company don't come right out and say they don't care, but what other conclusion can you draw?"

The Liberal hopeful concluded by saying, "It's a good thing we have enough Democrat-Liberals and liberal Democrats in the (State) Assembly like Travia and Waryas to block this Republican-proposed cruel cutback of Medicaid. The people would be in pretty bad shape without them this year."

Unions Near Agreement To Ease Discrimination

By NEIL GILBRIDE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO construction unions and federal officials were reported close today to agreeing on a set of rules to admit more Negroes into the unions in an attempt to ease longstanding complaints of racial discrimination.

Sources indicated the proposed agreement would withhold tough government sanctions as long as the 18 building trades unions moved successfully on a voluntary basis to open their doors wider to Negroes and other minority groups.

"I think it looks pretty good," said Plumbers Union President Peter T. Schoemann of the chances for solving the issue, which has long been a sore point between Johnson administration officials and the politically powerful labor movement.

The construction unions have been the target of numerous racial bias charges from civil rights groups.

Presidents of the 18 unions of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, representing some 3.5 million workers, reportedly were ready to act on a final draft of proposed regulations worked out with the Labor Department.

Sources said the proposed agreement would assure the building trades against any government requirement for a certain quota of Negroes in the union's or their apprenticeship training programs.

The unions bitterly opposed previous Labor Department antidiscrimination proposals which they said would have imposed a quota system on them.

Schoemann a year ago was instrumental in killing one Labor Department proposal that would have required regular reports on how many Negroes were enrolled in unions' apprenticeship programs.

"We think the best results would come from a better rapport between top officials of the Labor Department and the building trades," said C. J. Haggerty, president of the trades department at a meeting here.

Haggerty, Schoemann, and several other key union officials have been working for months on the proposed new antidiscrimination plan with Secretary of Labor Department Solicitor Charles Donahue.

Haggerty indicated the proposal would embody a continuing top-level committee of unions and Labor Department officials to try to solve discrimination complaints.

While avoiding any quota formula and emphasizing voluntary action by the unions, the proposed agreement reportedly includes provisions for the Labor Department to press discrimination complaints if a union fails to act.

Marvella Hits GOP on the Medicaid Cuts

Joseph A. Marvella, seeking the Liberal Party nomination for the State Senate in Dutchess and Ulster County's 38th District, said that, "The Republican campaign to cut the heart out of the Medicaid program is a good example of why they could never be called a party of the people."

Marvella, a resident of Poughkeepsie, claims that the Republicans, in order "to save middle and high income taxpayers a relatively small amount of money . . . are willing to callously sacrifice millions of New Yorkers to a life of poor health, untreated illness, perpetual debt, or all of these sad situations."

The Poughkeepsie barber declared that GOPers "want to cut the eligibility limit for a family of four to $5,300. Yet the U.S. Dept. of Commerce, on Oct. 25, 1967, issued a report estimating that just plain living . . . costs a family of four $7,329 a year.

"There's an awfully big spread between that figure and $5,300," said Marvella.

He went on to question, "How do the Republicans expect those families in the middle to make the medical scene? Rockefeller, Brydges, Rolison and company don't come right out and say they don't care, but what other conclusion can you draw?"

The Liberal hopeful concluded by saying, "It's a good thing we have enough Democrat-Liberals and liberal Democrats in the (State) Assembly like Travia and Waryas to block this Republican-proposed cruel cutback of Medicaid. The people would be in pretty bad shape without them this year."

Firemen Meet On Contract

A fact-finding session, conducted by Milton Friedman of the New York State Public Employe Relations Board was held yesterday between city officials and members of Uniformed Fire Fighters Local 461 in the mayor's office, city hall.

The firemen in protesting a contract settlement between them and the city, reportedly called in the fact-finder who will meet again with the disputing parties sometime after March 1.

S. James Matthews represented the firemen in the three-hour session yesterday. Corporation Council Aaron E. Klein represented the city.

Attending the meeting were various firemen, including Robert Gollnick, president of Local 461 and Hugh Greer, secretary. On the city side there were Acting Mayor T. Robert Gallo and City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle. Fire Commissioner Morton Finch was also present.

The dispute stems from wage differences between what the firemen settled for with fire commissioners and what the mayor and Common Council eventually approved.

The firemen negotiated for $400 across the board while Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan offered $350 across the board which was passed by the Council. The policemen were offered and settled for the $350.

Firemen claim they negotiated in good faith according to the Taylor Law on public employes with the commissioners and arrived at the mutually agreeable $400 figure. Garraghan claims the city cannot afford the $400 increase this year.

Speaking of the meeting Klein told The Freeman this morning, "The discussions are being handled in a gentlemanly, businesslike manner and we hope that all sides will be satisfied after due process of law has been carried out."

The Harassing Mail to Viet War Widows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grieving women who have lost husbands and sons in the Vietnam war are being subjected to a barrage of antiwar diatribe sent anonymously through the mail. Some of it says American servicemen fighting in Vietnam are worse than cannibals.

The Associated Press obtained copies of this material from the widow of a soldier killed in combat. It came in hand-addressed envelopes postmarked Susanville, Calif., and bearing the return address: P.O. Box 497, Susanville.

That post office box number is held in the name of H. L. Hummel. The same name appears at the end of an essay included in the antiwar material mailed to the widow.

Also included was a reprint of an antiwar essay printed last summer in The Christian Century, a highly respected nondenominational religious weekly published in Chicago.

On Dec. 19, 1967. The Christian Century filled an order for 100 reprints of the article. A spokesman for the magazine said the order for reprints was signed: "H. L. Hummel, Box 497, Susanville, Calif."

A telephone call placed to an H. L. Hummel in Susanville was answered by a woman. She said her husband is 87 and could not hear well enough to carry on a direct conversation. She relayed questions to him. He answered into the telephone himself.

The man, a sheet and blanket salsman, said he had ordered the 100 reprints of the Christian Century article "because I wanted to read them."

Asked if he had ever mailed the reprints or other material to women whose sons or husbands were killed in Vietnam, the man said:

"I wouldn't say for sure if I didn't or did. I don't remember sending any of this to women who have lost a son or a husband. What if I did? I don't see anything wrong with it. There's no law against it, is there?"

There is no law against it.

"It's detestible and it's maddening, but it's not actionable," said Timothy J. May, general counsel to the Post Office Department. "Short of being malicious, you can use first-class mail to say almost anything to anyone about public issues."

The Pentagon launchd an extensive investigation in April 1965 to track down the sources of harassing mail and telephone calls to families of servicemen killed in Vietnam.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 13, 1968

Do We Need Another Law?

Has the Taylor Law, which bars strikes by public employes, proved effective in protecting the public from crises resulting from illegal strikes or do we still need another law to replace this present law which replaced the old Condon-Wadlin Act? This is something for the Legislature to think about when considering the proposal of Governor Rockefeller to give the state control of New York City's Sanitation Department. The special legislation is requested as a result of a nine-day illegal strike by the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association over wage demands.

If the Legislature passes the measure, will other unions such as policemen and firemen throughout the entire state go on strike if their demands are not met? Will not a favorable vote encourage more strikes elsewhere by public employes? Or will the state just intervene with such schemes when it happens in New York City?

It is well for the lawmakers to remember that less than a year ago the Legislature placed on the statute books a law to insure peace and equity in the civil service. This so-called model law was sponsored by Governor Rockefeller and christened "The Taylor Law."

The Condon-Wadlin Law, which lasted for 20 years, was said to be punitive and unenforceable and was rarely invoked. When it was invoked, public officials and courts rarely enforced it to the letter. The reluctance stemmed partly from the fact that penalties bore primarily on strikers themselves, not their unions or union leaders. It fell into total contempt when it became necessary to pass a special law exempting the Transit Workers Union from its provisions.

Condon-Wadlin was said to have created a dangerous situation because too many public employes work in critical areas of public safety and health to tolerate an anti-strike law that does no prevent strikes.

So the Taylor Law, which was said to be fair, practical and realistic, was enacted as a solution for the problem of strikes against the public interest. The community now was to be spared crises with disagreements being reconciled short of the strike. Government employes were assured of full equity in the determination of wages and all other conditions.

With passage of the Taylor Law, public employes' unions were supposed to recognize the principle that they do not have the right to strike. But it hasn't worked out that way.

Paradox of Saving

American savings rose to 7.5 per cent of personal income after taxes in the final quarter of 1967. Were this rate to prevail for all of 1968, it would cut consumer spending between $9 billion and $10 billion. It is pointed out that the Administration's proposed 10 per cent surcharge would produce between $9 billion and $10 billion. In other words, the surtax would siphon off the additional money the consumer would be spending did he not raise his savings so high.

This paradox presents the taxpayer with a difficult problem. One reason he has been holding back spending is the uncertainties of the war in Vietnam. He is also cautious during a business downturn, such as last year's slowdown. Strikes, such as Ford's, literally prevent consumption. Higher prices cause people to hold back for fear they can't meet two and three year installment obligations, and higher taxes have the same effect.

Thus, uncertainty about passage of the surtax may prove as effective in restraining inflation as the tax itself. However, most financial institutions now are urging passage of the surtax for siphoning off some of the current flow of purchasing power and lessening the chance of a strong surge in consumer spending if attitude change. They are afraid that saving has reached such a high level that the dam will burst soon into a spending spree if it is not checked soon.

David Lawrence Says

Republicans Have Not Built a Strong Case

WASHINGTON—Candidates for political office this year, whether Republicans or Democrats, will find to their surprise perhaps that severe criticism of President Johnson in connection with the Vietnam war will react against them.

The American people are never happy about any war, but history shows that they are much more inclined to support a president during a grave conflict than to desert him in favor of the opposing nominee. In Congress, however, those Democrats or Republicans who are trying to get votes by raising the Vietnam war issue are assuming that the American people will repudiate the administration during wartime solely for that reason.

Domestic issues are far more penetrating and can mobilize more votes for an opposition ticket than international questions. One reason for this is that the public generally is confused about how best to end the war. While participation in it may be deplored, there is a tendency to support the President in office on the assumption that this will be less risky than a change in the Commander-in-Chief.

The only chance the opposition to President Johnson really has is on the domestic side. There are issues which have alienated many voters who supported Mr. Johnson in 1964. Not only are increases in taxes unpopular, but the high cost of living has aroused a deep-seated feeling throughout the country, and the largest part of the blame for the inflation is being placed, as usual, upon the party in power.

Debate on the Vietnam problem has thus far proved unclear. Governor Romney criticizes the President on the ground that he has bungled the whole thing, but former Vice President Nixon is much less captious. In one of his recent speeches, he said that President Johnson is "a patriotic American doing the best job he can." Mr. Nixon at the same time pointed out that the President has shown a lack of understanding in handling the situation and that it could be improved. This is a much more adriot way of getting votes.

The assumption here in Washington among various members of Congress has been that anybody who speaks out against the Vietnam War immediately obtain the support of parents with sons of draft age. But there are many servicemen who have returned from Viet Nam or who are still in our fighting forces, and these personally or by letter to their parents show resentment against the critics, whom they blame for prolonging the war.

Spokesmen for the President during the campaign will doubtless lay the main responsibility for the continuation of the Vietnam conflict on the shoulders of the critics. Inside the government there are many officials who feel that the United States would have gotten the enemy to the peace table long ago if it had not been for the "dissenters" inside this country who have insisted that the bombing be stopped and the war ended promptly even though American objectives have not been attained.

If the debate in the 1968 political campaign were confined solely to the Vietnam issue, this would mean a large number of votes from the Republican side in support of President Johnson. If the Republican candidates are able to subordinate the Vietnam issue and concentrate on the handling of federal finances—as, for instance, the failure to economize—and if criticism is directed at the many internal programs which have been initiated at great expense when the government really could not afford them, there could be a different story to tell about the forthcoming campaign.

As matters look now, the Republicans have not built a case for a change in administration. They have neglected the domestic side of the debate and have not shown that they themselves will be able to do something to cut down the cost of living and avoid further increases in taxes.

Lots of things, of course, can happen between February and November, but if the election were held today, the opposition to the administration would by no means be as strong as the public-opinion polls have indicated. The fact is that, when a decision has to be made on who shall occupy the post of commander-in-chief, the voters are not likely to choose someone who has not given them a clear idea of exactly how he would conduct Vietnam policy or even how he would solve the domestic problems that are causing so much discontent throughout the country.

Romney Won't Quit Even If Hurt in New Hampshire

By BRUCE BIOSSAT,
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some associates of Gov. George Romney of Michigan think he will stay in the fight for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination even if he loses both the New Hampshire and the Wisconsin primaries.

Even if they should prove wrong on this long-range forecast, even if two such defeats should dry up his big money sources and make really effective campaigning thereafter almost impossible, these individuals are convinced Romney will be a hard campaigner through the April 2 Wisconsin primary.

What they are saying is that, in the event of a really bad defeat in New Hampshire, the governor would not quickly take himself out of the picture and clear the way for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York or some other moderate candidate.

Since Rockefeller is heavily committed to support of Romney, then so long as the latter's breath steams up his political mirror even slightly, the New Yorker is completely locked in.

Of course, Rockefeller already has said both publicly and privately that he has no intention of moving to advance his own cause at any stage. But the point of this Romney news is that it cuts down Rockefeller's options. At least through April 2 and possibly much longer, he could not change his mind if he wanted to—unless he were willing to cast away his credibilty.

Romney has done well so far in New Hampshire, according to most on-scene accounts. His ground-level, face-on campaigning has been every bit as good as predicted by his most optimistic backers. And, on such issues as Vietnam and related foreign matters, he has been much more plausible than he sounded through much of 1967.

But his open rival, Richard Nixon, is also off to a strong New Hampshire start and the polls indicate that he began with a sizable edge.

Possibly only some Nixon mistakes of high magnitude, or a sharp turn among New Hampshire's allegedly hawkish voters toward further disillusionment with the increasingly chaotic Vietnam war, could benefit Romney enough to make him a close threat in the March 12 primary.

What Romney associates fear, however, is that Romney's rather disastrous 1967 so thoroughly put voters off that the public is today virtually tuned out on him. Conceivably, he might be making as good sense today as any candidate in the field. The question is: Who is listening?

There is no point at this juncture in reviewing all the 1967 events and utterances which have brought the Michigan governor to his present pass.

It is obvious that the effect of his verbal confusions on Vietnam was a cumulative one, and that his "brainwash" statement of early September was climactic. He has never really made it back from there.

But it also seems plain, in careful retrospect, that some of the published appraisals were overharsh and even unfair.

Perhaps the worst of this sort were some of the accounts of Romney's December trip to Europe and Asia.

This reporter's private conversations, though conducted in part with persons admittedly friendly to the governor's cause, turned up rather persuasive evidence that he held his own quite ably in his face-to-face meetings with chiefs of state and other prominent figures as he cut his dogged swath from Paris to Moscow to Saigon.

Drew Pearson Says

Shriver Will Exit Shortly As Antipoverty Administrator

DANGEROUS MEDICINE

Last Tuesday Drew Pearson reported that the drug chloromycetin had been used in hundreds of cases for minor ailments, sometimes causing deaths, when it should have been used only for very rare diseases.

Later that day several eminent doctors testified before a Senate subcommittee to exactly those facts.

Drew Pearson says: Sargent Shriver will exit shortly; his hard-won antipoverty funds got nicked by LBJ; Kennedy-Johnson feud hasn't eased his job.

WASHINGTON — Sargent Shriver, organizer of the Peace Corps and pioneer of the antipoverty administration, will shortly bow out as its administrator.

Shriver is unique in the Johnson administration in that he is the only member of the Kennedy family to remain working for LBJ. In view of the Kennedy-Johnson feud, this has not been easy.

However, Shriver has always been completely loyal to the President, and Johnson in turn has been both cordial and sympathetic in his relations with him.

Shriver is married to Eunice Kennedy, the most vigorous of the Kennedy sisters. Just after Thanksgiving, Eunice was attending a tea at the home of her sister-in-law, Ethel, wife of Sen. Bobby Kennedy. Ethel asked why Eunice was not coming along to Aspen, Colo., for the usual Christmas ski party with the rest of the family.

"I'm spending Christmas with Father," replied Eunice. Her father, severely crippled by a stroke and in a wheelchair, was spending his Christmas at Palm Beach.

"Why don't you come out on the 26th?" asked Ethel.

"Only one day after Christmas?" replied Eunice. "It would look as if I were in a hurry to leave."

Eunice, like all the Kennedys, is loyal to the family. But she is also married to a top member of the Johnson administration.

Mrs. Shriver has her own ideas regarding LBJ. Arriving a little late at a women's party, she explained that she had just been to the White House for the signing of the Mental Health Act.

"I got a pen," she exclaimed, holding up one of the souvenir pens which the President gives to honored guests at these ceremonies. "I also got kissed. Just two of us got kissed."

Eunice said this in a mimicking voice with a slight Texas drawl.

"Who else got kissed?" she was asked.

A little gray-haired lady named Muriel," said Mrs. Shriver, referring, of course, to the wife of the Vice President.

Loyal to LBJ

Sargent Schriver is a courageous man. At one time, a week or so after Johnson became President, he stepped into the feud between LBJ and Bobby and tried to patch things up. He got caught in a bitter buzz saw and stepped abruptly out. He has not got caught in that buzz saw again.

Shriver even wanted to attend the memorial services for his late brother-in-law, the President, at the Lincoln Memorial Dec. 22, 1963, where the new President spoke but which all the members of the Kennedy family boycotted. At the last minute other members of the family prevailed on Shriver not to attend. His seat alongside the President was vacant at the ceremony.

Meanwhile Shriver has continued to serve President Johnson loyally and efficiently, and Johnson for the most part has seemed grateful. He even considered drafting Shriver to run as his vice presidential running mate in the 1964 elections. When this report got back to Bobby Kennedy, he sent word by Ken O'Donnell that if any member of the Kennedy family was going to run for vice president, it would be himself, Bobby, not a man who was only "half a Kennedy."

When President Johnson set up the antipoverty administration (Office of Economic Opportunity) three years ago, he drafted Shriver from the Peace Corps to take over this difficult job. It has been the most controversial branch of government.

Like the Works Progress Administration, thrown up in a hurry by President Roosevelt under Harry Hopkins in the days of the great depression, OEO drew a lot of criticism. But like Hopkins, Shriver did get people working.

Criticism reached a crescendo last summer when antipoverty enemies in Congress held up OEO's appropriation for nine months, even cut its personnel's pay checks.

Whereupon Shriver won a notable victory. From all over the country the heat began to pour in on Congress. Twenty mayors flew to Washington to protest the curtailment of OEO. The public reaction was so great that the House of Representatives reversed itself and gave Shriver more money than allotted by the Johnson budget. It was a great victory.

However, when it came to signing the Antipoverty Act, retrieved from defeat by Shriver, there was no Presidential ceremony, no pens were given away to honored guests. The Act was signed while the President was flying over Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam in a manner which it seemed was calculated not to call public attention to Shriver's victory.

Shortly after he returned from his Christmas holiday, the President began switching Shriver's hard-earned money over to the new "Urban Coalition," a partnership between business and government to train unemployed adults. It is an important project.

However, it has two drawbacks. First, the $135,000,000 to operate it is being siphoned away from youth training under OEO. It is youth training which has helped to keep Negroes off the streets and helped prevent race riots in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Second, the Urban Coalition program has to get underway in time to be effective before the summer, when race problems flare again. The time is short, and it will be a miracle, even under the skillful direction of Henry Ford, if private business can get going in this period of time.

Despite the current nicking Shriver's hard-won poverty money, he and the President remain on cordial personal terms. Some friends say that Shriver is probably more cordial with LBJ than with his brother-in-law Bobby. However, he is convinced the time has come to bow out.

Military Feels Khe Sanh Should Be Held at All Costs

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
(Chicago Daily News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Joint Chiefs of Staff feel that they have good reasons for the advice they gave President Johnson that the Vietnam position of Khe Sanh can and should be defended.

As with many things in a war, however, this decision signifies the acceptance of a calculated risk.

The President has told the chiefs that he does not want "another Dien Bien Phu." The chiefs have assured him, in a memo signed by their chairman, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, that Khe Sanh will not end in a humiliating defeat for the United States along the lines of the losing battle the French fought in North Vietnam 14 years ago.

Until the battle of Khe Sanh is fought, however, no one can be sure of its outcome.

In reaching their decision, it is known that the chiefs weighed the cost of holding this Marine base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam against the effect of its loss.

Khe Sanh is important strategically because of its location. It is in mountainous, jungle-covered terrain, a few miles from Laos at the terminus of the Ho Chi Minh infiltration trails from the north. It also functions as the western strongpoint of the U. S. defense line running just below the demilitarized zone that guards against an invasion from the north.

As long as the United States retains possession of Khe Sanh, it is stated here, our forces will be in a position to impede the infiltration of enemy troops from the north.

Of even more importance, the United States will maintain its ability to deny the enemy an opportunity to capture Quang Tri and Thua Thien, the two northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

Loss of Khe Sanh would mean that the enemy would be in a good position to envelop the western flank of the DMZ defense line. His goal would be to come in from behind the U. S. forces along this line, and capture the two provinces with their cities of Hue and Quang Tri.

This long has been a prime objective of General Vo Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese defense minister. On his maps he shows these two provinces as part of an area called Tri Thien, which includes the two southernmost provinces of North Vietnam.

An enemy success in the upcoming battle for the mile long and half-mile-wide base of Khe Sanh could have important psychological repercussions. It would be a blow to South Vietnam and would strengthen the hand of North Vietnam for entering negotiations for an end of the war.

But how many lives the United States may have to spend to hold Khe Sanh is something that no one here will talk about.

County Legislation

Editor, The Freeman:

Our new county legislature might well consider the following as being by far the most crucial of all county problems and they definitely require study with a background of qualified advisers for their elimination:

The over-industrialization and "progress" malady of Ulster County, with its inevitable side effects of the pollutions; over-population; wanton destruction of irreplaceable natural resources; the unbelievable, spreading growth of crime, materialism, and immorality; unsolvable problems in the education of our youth; problems related to unemployment and concerned with the shocking rise in welfare administration (note that word "administration"); transportation problems involving the curtailment of unnecessary travel and the rationing of the number of cars to each family; urban renewal; the escalation of costs and the ineffectuality of the present mental health "program." And all of the last-mentioned problem is a direct outgrowth of overcrowding, "noise-pollution," unhealthful social attitudes, combined wth "cure tactics" rather than "preventive" large scale adjustment to minimum human needs. In uses and profits of a full-bloomed industrial revolution when it would be and is far healthier to determinedly maintain at least a minimum of human needs.

But as ominous and grim as the above, in fact, an outcome of it, world-wide in its spread, is the world famine we go inexorably toward between 1975-1980, which is predicted by our own federal Department of Agriculture and other well-known expertise on the fast-approaching shortage of food and its equitable distribution to suffering nations of the world. (Note: This writer is not an alarmist as will be revealed in coming months.)

The prevailing, nightmarish rise of county operating costs originates in the dizzy, current attitutde of "opulence" reflected by all Ulster County unrestricted department expenditures. Austerity and consideration of the brutal facts must now replace the past almost 20 years' "glory road" which has been pursued through false hopes held forth by "progress" propaganda, chambers of commerce, runaway realtors, and technocracy's public relations brainwashers.

The individual citizen and his violated rights to efficient democratic government, uncontrolled by industry and its politically-placed henchmen, and to a future free of the other words, human beings are expected to adapt to the overhanging fear of nuclear reactor utility plants with their unburyable radioactive wastes which are making an industrial wasteland of New York State through industry's powerful, ruthless organizational propaganda; poisoned air, poisoned water; drug addiction and educational anarchy; and the lawlessness of our fear-obsessed youth are the tragic outcome of too much "progress" in the wrong direction. If county citizens can see their tragic, perhaps irrevocably tragic mistakes,—then it might not yet be too late to take the wiser turn from the road, down which they have been "progressing."

We hope our present county legislators will consider their duty to weigh and balance the results of their own individual voting, as they do the work they were voted in to do. That responsibility is now upon their shoulders and through their own desires to participate in county legislation. It's tough to try to live with a guilty conscience; and we all know when we are failing to live up to our finest principles.

Do We Need Another Law?

Has the Taylor Law, which bars strikes by public employes, proved effective in protecting the public from crises resulting from illegal strikes or do we still need another law to replace this present law which replaced the old Condon-Wadlin Act? This is something for the Legislature to think about when considering the proposal of Governor Rockefeller to give the state control of New York City's Sanitation Department. The special legislation is requested as a result of a nine-day illegal strike by the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association over wage demands.

If the Legislature passes the measure, will other unions such as policemen and firemen throughout the entire state go on strike if their demands are not met? Will not a favorable vote encourage more strikes elsewhere by public employes? Or will the state just intervene with such schemes when it happens in New York City?

It is well for the lawmakers to remember that less than a year ago the Legislature placed on the statute books a law to insure peace and equity in the civil service. This so-called model law was sponsored by Governor Rockefeller and christened "The Taylor Law."

The Condon-Wadlin Law, which lasted for 20 years, was said to be punitive and unenforceable and was rarely invoked. When it was invoked, public officials and courts rarely enforced it to the letter. The reluctance stemmed partly from the fact that penalties bore primarily on strikers themselves, not their unions or union leaders. It fell into total contempt when it became necessary to pass a special law exempting the Transit Workers Union from its provisions.

Condon-Wadlin was said to have created a dangerous situation because too many public employes work in critical areas of public safety and health to tolerate an anti-strike law that does no prevent strikes.

So the Taylor Law, which was said to be fair, practical and realistic, was enacted as a solution for the problem of strikes against the public interest. The community now was to be spared crises with disagreements being reconciled short of the strike. Government employes were assured of full equity in the determination of wages and all other conditions.

With passage of the Taylor Law, public employes' unions were supposed to recognize the principle that they do not have the right to strike. But it hasn't worked out that way.

Paradox of Saving

American savings rose to 7.5 per cent of personal income after taxes in the final quarter of 1967. Were this rate to prevail for all of 1968, it would cut consumer spending between $9 billion and $10 billion. It is pointed out that the Administration's proposed 10 per cent surcharge would produce between $9 billion and $10 billion. In other words, the surtax would siphon off the additional money the consumer would be spending did he not raise his savings so high.

This paradox presents the taxpayer with a difficult problem. One reason he has been holding back spending is the uncertainties of the war in Vietnam. He is also cautious during a business downturn, such as last year's slowdown. Strikes, such as Ford's, literally prevent consumption. Higher prices cause people to hold back for fear they can't meet two and three year installment obligations, and higher taxes have the same effect.

Thus, uncertainty about passage of the surtax may prove as effective in restraining inflation as the tax itself. However, most financial institutions now are urging passage of the surtax for siphoning off some of the current flow of purchasing power and lessening the chance of a strong surge in consumer spending if attitude change. They are afraid that saving has reached such a high level that the dam will burst soon into a spending spree if it is not checked soon.

David Lawrence Says

Republicans Have Not Built a Strong Case

WASHINGTON—Candidates for political office this year, whether Republicans or Democrats, will find to their surprise perhaps that severe criticism of President Johnson in connection with the Vietnam war will react against them.

The American people are never happy about any war, but history shows that they are much more inclined to support a president during a grave conflict than to desert him in favor of the opposing nominee. In Congress, however, those Democrats or Republicans who are trying to get votes by raising the Vietnam war issue are assuming that the American people will repudiate the administration during wartime solely for that reason.

Domestic issues are far more penetrating and can mobilize more votes for an opposition ticket than international questions. One reason for this is that the public generally is confused about how best to end the war. While participation in it may be deplored, there is a tendency to support the President in office on the assumption that this will be less risky than a change in the Commander-in-Chief.

The only chance the opposition to President Johnson really has is on the domestic side. There are issues which have alienated many voters who supported Mr. Johnson in 1964. Not only are increases in taxes unpopular, but the high cost of living has aroused a deep-seated feeling throughout the country, and the largest part of the blame for the inflation is being placed, as usual, upon the party in power.

Debate on the Vietnam problem has thus far proved unclear. Governor Romney criticizes the President on the ground that he has bungled the whole thing, but former Vice President Nixon is much less captious. In one of his recent speeches, he said that President Johnson is "a patriotic American doing the best job he can." Mr. Nixon at the same time pointed out that the President has shown a lack of understanding in handling the situation and that it could be improved. This is a much more adriot way of getting votes.

The assumption here in Washington among various members of Congress has been that anybody who speaks out against the Vietnam War immediately obtain the support of parents with sons of draft age. But there are many servicemen who have returned from Viet Nam or who are still in our fighting forces, and these personally or by letter to their parents show resentment against the critics, whom they blame for prolonging the war.

Spokesmen for the President during the campaign will doubtless lay the main responsibility for the continuation of the Vietnam conflict on the shoulders of the critics. Inside the government there are many officials who feel that the United States would have gotten the enemy to the peace table long ago if it had not been for the "dissenters" inside this country who have insisted that the bombing be stopped and the war ended promptly even though American objectives have not been attained.

If the debate in the 1968 political campaign were confined solely to the Vietnam issue, this would mean a large number of votes from the Republican side in support of President Johnson. As matters look now, the Republicans have not built a case for a change in administration. They have neglected the domestic side of the debate and have not shown that they themselves will be able to do something to cut down the cost of living and avoid further increases in taxes.

Lots of things, of course, can happen between February and November, but if the election were held today, the opposition to the administration would by no means be as strong as the public-opinion polls have indicated. The fact is that, when a decision has to be made on who shall occupy the post of commander-in-chief, the voters are not likely to choose someone who has not given them a clear idea of exactly how he would conduct Vietnam policy or even how he would solve the domestic problems that are causing so much discontent throughout the country.

(Chicago Daily News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Joint Chiefs of Staff feel that they have good reasons for the advice they gave President Johnson that the Vietnam position of Khe Sanh can and should be defended.

As with many things in a war, however, this decision signifies the acceptance of a calculated risk.

The President has told the chiefs that he does not want "another Dien Bien Phu." The chiefs have assured him, in a memo signed by their chairman, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, that Khe Sanh will not end in a humiliating defeat for the United States along the lines of the losing battle the French fought in North Vietnam 14 years ago.

Until the battle of Khe Sanh is fought, however, no one can be sure of its outcome.

In reaching their decision, it is known that the chiefs weighed the cost of holding this Marine base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam against the effect of its loss.

Khe Sanh is important strategically because of its location. It is in mountainous, jungle-covered terrain, a few miles from Laos at the terminus of the Ho Chi Minh infiltration trails from the north. It also functions as the western strongpoint of the U. S. defense line running just below the demilitarized zone that guards against an invasion from the north.

As long as the United States retains possession of Khe Sanh, it is stated here, our forces will be in a position to impede the infiltration of enemy troops from the north.

Of even more importance, the United States will maintain its ability to deny the enemy an opportunity to capture Quang Tri and Thua Thien, the two northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

Loss of Khe Sanh would mean that the enemy would be in a good position to envelop the western flank of the DMZ defense line. His goal would be to come in from behind the U. S. forces along this line, and capture the two provinces with their cities of Hue and Quang Tri.

This long has been a prime objective of General Vo Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese defense minister. On his maps he shows these two provinces as part of an area called Tri Thien, which includes the two southernmost provinces of North Vietnam.

An enemy success in the upcoming battle for the mile long and half-mile-wide base of Khe Sanh could have important psychological repercussions. It would be a blow to South Vietnam and would strengthen the hand of North Vietnam for entering negotiations for an end of the war.

But how many lives the United States may have to spend to hold Khe Sanh is something that no one here will talk about.

County Legislation

Editor, The Freeman:

Our new county legislature might well consider the following as being by far the most crucial of all county problems and they definitely require study with a background of qualified advisers for their elimination:

The over-industrialization and "progress" malady of Ulster County, with its inevitable side effects of the pollutions; over-population; wanton destruction of irreplaceable natural resources; the unbelievable, spreading growth of crime, materialism, and immorality; unsolvable problems in the education of our youth; problems related to unemployment and concerned with the shocking rise in welfare administration (note that word "administration"); transportation problems involving the curtailment of unnecessary travel and the rationing of the number of cars to each family; urban renewal; the escalation of costs and the ineffectuality of the present mental health "program." And all of the last-mentioned problem is a direct outgrowth of overcrowding, "noise-pollution," unhealthful social attitudes, combined wth "cure tactics" rather than "preventive" large scale adjustment to minimum human needs. In uses and profits of a full-bloomed industrial revolution when it would be and is far healthier to determinedly maintain at least a minimum of human needs.

But as ominous and grim as the above, in fact, an outcome of it, world-wide in its spread, is the world famine we go inexorably toward between 1975-1980, which is predicted by our own federal Department of Agriculture and other well-known expertise on the fast-approaching shortage of food and its equitable distribution to suffering nations of the world. (Note: This writer is not an alarmist as will be revealed in coming months.)

The prevailing, nightmarish rise of county operating costs originates in the dizzy, current attitutde of "opulence" reflected by all Ulster County unrestricted department expenditures. Austerity and consideration of the brutal facts must now replace the past almost 20 years' "glory road" which has been pursued through false hopes held forth by "progress" propaganda, chambers of commerce, runaway realtors, and technocracy's public relations brainwashers.

The individual citizen and his violated rights to efficient democratic government, uncontrolled by industry and its politically-placed henchmen, and to a future free of the other words, human beings are expected to adapt to the overhanging fear of nuclear reactor utility plants with their unburyable radioactive wastes which are making an industrial wasteland of New York State through industry's powerful, ruthless organizational propaganda; poisoned air, poisoned water; drug addiction and educational anarchy; and the lawlessness of our fear-obsessed youth are the tragic outcome of too much "progress" in the wrong direction. If county citizens can see their tragic, perhaps irrevocably tragic mistakes,—then it might not yet be too late to take the wiser turn from the road, down which they have been "progressing."

We hope our present county legislators will consider their duty to weigh and balance the results of their own individual voting, as they do the work they were voted in to do. That responsibility is now upon their shoulders and through their own desires to participate in county legislation. It's tough to try to live with a guilty conscience; and we all know when we are failing to live up to our finest principles.

Teamsters, Robie Settle

The ten-day disagreement between Robie Construction and Teamsters Local 445 at Rondout Gardens has been settled following a meeting yesterday with the Kingston Housing Authority, builders of the 135-unit project.

George E. Yerry, chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority, told The Freeman work will resume today, as per normal, and union pickets will be removed.

Yerry did not release any details of the settlement but said that both sides were satisfied with the agreement. Robert Marx, president of Robie Construction, contractors at Rondout Gardens, commended Yerry for his work in bringing his company and the Teamsters together. "Mr. Yerry deserves a great deal of credit in the settlement of this dispute. Robie Construction is now looking forward to the resumption of work and the completion of Rondout Gardens on schedule."

The dispute first made news on Feb. 1 over the employment or lack of employment of a Teamster described as either a shop steward or a truck driver.

He was a shop steward to the Teamsters and they said the failure of Robie to employ him was a violation of the contract between them and Robie.

Robie said the man was a truck driver and since they were not using trucks on the job due to inclement weather they would not employ him.

The low income apartment complex is expected to be ready for occupancy in mid-summer.

Wallace Confident

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a third-party candidate for president, says "we're going to do excellent in New York State."

Wallace contended in a radio interview that "people in all walks of life" were backing him in New York.

"You should see the volume of mail we get from New York," he said.

The interview was prepared by Radio Station WSIX, Nashville, Tenn., for the General Electric Broadcasting Co. and broadcast Monday on WGY, the General Electric outlet here.

Farm Laborer Arrested, Charged With Stabbing

A quarrel which occurred in a labor camp shack on the Moriello Farm on Route 32 south of the village of New Paltz at about 11:30 p. m. Monday, climaxed in a stabbing and the arrest of a farm laborer on a charge of second degree assault, a felony.

Trooper J. F. Czaplicki of the Highland substation said Troopers Philip A. Koenig and G. P. Rebhan were assigned to investigate the incident after complaints were received from the farm that a man had been stabbed during an altercation.

Willie Patmon, 30, an employe on the farm, told investigating troopers that he was stabbed in the left shoulder by his assilant who used a pair of scissors. Patmon refused medical treatment, authorities said.

Investigation of the assault early today resulted in the arrest of 50-year-old Roosevelt Likely, an employe on the Moriello farm.

Troopers Koenig and Rebhan booked Likely on a second degree assault charge and later arraigned him before New Paltz Town Justice Rexford Schneider. The defendant waived preliminary examination and was committed to the Ulster County Jail to await action of the grand jury.

No motive for the assault was reported by troopers.

Gorman to Introduce LBJ Resolution

A resolution praising President Johnson as "a voice of reason" and calling wholeheartedly for his renomination and reelection will be submitted tomorrow at the State Democratic meeting in Buffalo by Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Ulster County Democratic chairman.

Gorman's endorsement of Johnson for reelection has reportedly grown out of a recent exchange between Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick and State Democratic Chairman John J. Burns.

Resnick has been critical of the state committee's lack of commitment to Johnson and told Burns in a letter "to fish or cut bait."

Burns has been heard to say that Resnick's remarks might lose the state for Johnson.

Another resolution—a milder one, will also be presented tomorrow by Erie Democratic Chairman Joseph Frankel who asks that the state committee continue its loyal support of both Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as well as the 26 Democratic delegates.

A "dove" organization, known as the Niagara Frontier Coalition group is said to be planning to picket tomorrow's Buffalo meeting.

Report Little Progress In Vance, Korean Talks

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent.

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance met for almost three hours today with South Korea's premier and other top Cabinet ministers, but Korean sources reported they made "very little progress" toward eliminating differences between the United States and its Asian ally.

The meeting was "rough going," one Korean source reported. The conference ranged over problems of the complex crisis resulting from South Korea's worries over her defenses in the face of North Korean threats.

Vance planned another meeting with Premier Chung Il-kwon Wednesday and then was expected to pay his second visit to President Chung Hee Park. Whether that would be Vance's final conference nobody in authority would say, but the presidential envoy already has extended his visit one day, into Wednesday.

To Meet Annually

Korean sources said Vance and the Koreans agreed tentatively that the foreign and defense ministers of the two governments would meet annually to review mutual security problems, with the first meeting to be held in Washington in June. A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy would not comment on the report.

Informed sources also reported that the Koreans were asking the U. S. government to tell North Korea it will denounce the 1953 armistice agreement if the Communists send down any more raiders like the team that tried to assassinate President Park. The South Koreans also reportedly want the Americans to demand that North Korea apologize for the assassination attempt Jan. 21.

One informed Korean source said "very little progress" seemed to have been made toward healing the rift stemming from South Korean feelings that the United States, in its desire to secure the release of the USS Pueblo and its crew, is not paying sufficient attention to South Korean security.

Meanwhile, the U.N. Command announced it would meet Wednesday with North Korea at the Panmunjom truce headquarters to discuss "armistice violations."

North Korean infiltration across the demilitarized zone has increased steadily for more than a year. A U.S. military spokesman said American troops repelled two small groups of North Koreans Monday night and early today in two brief firefights in the U.S.-patroled section of the DMZ. No casualties were reported.

Harassment Campaign

North Korea has been concentrating on the U.S. sector in its harassment campaign along the frontier since it seized the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo Jan. 23.

Th North Koreans broadcast today a second purported confession by Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, skipper of the Pueblo. It repeated the first statement attributed to Bucher that the Pueblo had intruded in North Korean territorial waters.

The new statement added that Bucher is "always gripped by yearning for my family" and "would like to tell them that I am safe and healthy and that they should not worry too much."

"I think that if the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is merciful to us who deserve punishment, we will be sent home and we will be together and in love forever, never again to part," the statement said.

It was not known whether this was intended to set the stage for release of the Pueblo's crew.

No Evidence of Murder Claims Prison Pathologist

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Rodney F. Carlton, the pathologist who examined three skeletons found in unmarked graves at Cummins Prison Farm, said Monday he doubts that they are those of murder victims.

He said two of the skeletons "do not show any evidence of trauma or a violent death." He added that none of the skeletons showed any evidence of decapitation, amputation or mutilation.

Carlton said there were evidences of fractures on the third skeleton but added that he was "inclined to think that they were probably sustained after death."

Carlton said some of the fractures on the third skeleton are fresh. He said, however, that others are definitely older and are consistent with fractures due to blunt trauma.

"There are fractures that are older and make one suspicious that this was due to blunt trauma to the side of the skull," Carlton said. "However, this must be tempered with the knowledge that the fractures could have occurred several years after death due to 'caving in' of the grave."

Carlton said the indications were that the fresh fractures were sustained at the time of excavation or during shipment of the bones to his office.

Reports by inmates of convicts being murdered and secretly buried led to the discovery of the three skeletons Jan. 29. Authorities were led to the spot where the graves were unearthed by Reuben Johnson, 59, a convict who said he helped bury 10 or 12 inmates.

Carlton's report varied from that of Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton who had said that one of the skeletons had no head and that the leg bones of another appeared to have been broken in an attempt to fit it into the coffin.

Carlton said that the deaths probably occurred 25 to 30 years ago according to the state of decay of the coffins.

Carlton also suggested that a pathologist be on hand when digging is resumed. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has asked the state police to investigate the legal aspects of further digging. He says the digging will not be resumed until he is assured it can be done legally.

2 Are Fined $125 on Truck, Firearm Charges

Arrested on charges involving a truck and a revolver, Robert Douglas Stoff, 18, Sawkill Trailer Park, Kingston, and Robert Douglas Burke, 24, of 329 North Drive, Saugerties, today appeared for sentencing before Ulster Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly.

Both had previously pleaded guilty.

Stoff was fined $100 or 100 days in the county jail on a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, and $25 or 25 days on a charge of illegal possession of a firearm. He paid the fines. Burke was fined $25 or 25 days on a charge of illegal possession of a firearm, and received an unconditional discharge on a charge of criminal possession of stolen property. He paid the fine.

The arrests were made by Senior BCI Investigator Charles Teelon of the Kingston State Police, County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the sheriff's office and Deputy Sheriff Henry Newman, as the result of an investigation of a complaint made Saturday night by James Tubby of Esopus, who reported his jeep pickup truck missing from the Capri Restaurant parking lot. Tubby told authorities there was a .38 caliber revolver in the vehicle.

According to police investigators, Stoff allegedly gave the weapon to his cousin, Burke. The truck was found abandoned on Sawkill Road. The gun was missing but later recovered, police said.

Nixon, Romney In Viet Dispute

By RELMAN MORIN

DOVER, N.H. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is engaged in a sharp campaign dispute with Gov. George Romney of Michigan over American policy in Vietnam.

Nixon has taken a much harder line on the war.

"This is a war we cannot afford to lose," Nixon said in a speech, "for we are fighting in Vietnam not for Vietnam alone but for peace in the Pacific. It is this larger cause that makes it essential that our side prevail."

The former vice president is battling Romney in New Hampshire where the first presidential primary will be held March 12. Only eight delegates are at stake, but politicians attach unusual psychological importance to the election.

Mor than 1,200 persons drove across icy, snow-rimmed roads Monday night to hear Nixon deliver the speech at Dover.

Romney, who spent part of last week in Wisconsin, plans to return to resume his campaigning in New Hampshire tonight.

By contrast to Nixon's position on Vietnam, Romney said recently, "We need to take the peace offensive and show we're not warmongers . . . if we continue down this road, it leads right to World War III."

Romney has twice challenged Nixon to a debate in New Hampshire, but Nixon refused on the ground that such a confrontation would not serve the interests of Republican unity.

Nixon fired off one of his strongest statements on the war in a speech in which he said: "The Pacific has ceased to be a barrier. It is now a link that joins America, intimately and inseparably, with the nations on its western rim. Their stability is essential to our own security, and their stability is at stake in Vietnam."

Nixon said that if the Communists win in Vietnam, their victory would be the "signal" for them to instigate similar wars elsewhere in Asia, Africa and Latin America. "It would powerfully reinforce the Peking hard liners, the 'hawks,' in the internal Communist struggle," Nixon said.

Nixon's Dover audience filled the 900 seats in the high school auditorium. Two hundred persons listened from the cafeteria and about 100 or more clustered outside the entrances.

Marbletown Outlaws the Junk Cars

"It took five years to do it, but finally we're going to get rid of the illegal junk cars in Marbletown," Town Supervisor Roy Webber said as he announced final plans to put the town's junk car law into effect.

"We've got the ordinance, we've got enforcement procedures set, and we've even got a place for the citizens to take their old cars," he said. "Now no one has an excuse."

The Marbletown law states that "unregistered, old, or secondhand" automobiles, including stock cars, "no longer . . . in condition for legal use on the public highways" are illegal, unless the owner stores them in a building, or operates a licensed junkyard.

"We're setting March 1 as the cut-off date," said Webber, "and we plan to give the people a month grace period. That means that after April 1, anyone who has old, inoperative cars around his property is liable for a stiff fine."

Penalties for violations of the ordinance may be as high as $100 or 30 days imprisonment, and each day of the violation counts as a separate offense.

William Kelly, a junkyard owner in Cottekill, has offered to take any cars that Marbletown citizens wish to dispose of, said Webber. The Kelly junkyard is on the east side of Lucas Turnpike Extension, halfway between Cottekill Road and Route 213. There is no charge if the owner brings his vehicle in but Kelly will probably have to charge $5 or more to haul an automobile to his yard.

Labor Leaders Quit McCarthy Movement

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The presidents of three major labor unions have quit the Americans for Democratic Action board over its endorsement of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's presidential bid.

They called the endorsement of the Minnesota Democrat's candidacy ill-considered and an unwarranted repudiation of President Johnson solely on the Vietnam war issue. McCarthy is running in opposition to Johnson's Vietnam policy.

In the Republican race, meanwhile, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon took a decidedly harder stand on the Vietnam war than Michigan Gov. George Romney and said 'this is a war we cannot afford to lose."

The ADA resignations came Monday from I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers Union, Louis Stulberg of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers of America.

The ADA board Saturday gave its nod to McCarthy by a 65-47 vote. It marked the first time in 20 years the organization declined to endorse an incumbent Democratic president.

Nixon strongly endorsed the American military effort in Vietnam as the "cork in the bottle" against a Communist takeover in Asia.

Romney, by contrast, has said: "We need to take the peace offensive and show we're not warmongers . . . If we continue down this road, it leads right to World War III."

In other political developments:

—Nebraska Secretary of State Frank Marsh promised a surprise that may focus national attention on the state Wednesday when he announces the presidential candidates who will be on Nebraska's all-star preferential primary ballot.

—Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., announced full refunds had been mailed to all contributors in the controversial drive to raise $100,000 for his office expenses. Percy earlier had said the drive was being misunderstood and called it off.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my husband, Joseph P. Costello, who died on February 13, 1966.

I had a wonderful husband,
Patient, kind and true,
No other friend in all the world,
Would be as true as you.
For all his loving kindness,
He asked nothing in return,
If all the world deserted me,
To my husband, I could have turned.
To all who have a wonderful husband,
Cherish him with loving care,
You will never know the heartache,
Till you find he is not there.

Loving Wife,
CATHERINE COSTELLO

Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph P. Costello Sr. who passed away two years ago today, February 13, 1966.

Dear Daddy:

Two lonely years have sadly passed and it just doesn't seem true; for our hearts are oh, so heavy with love and longing for you!

In the kitchen and out on the course, we look for you everywhere, Oh, God, I pray so hard and through my tears, I vision you there.

Little Cathy still whispers your name, so that I won't hear, for she's afraid to Mommy's eyes, still comes a tear.

Oh, Daddy Dear, all your grandchildren love and miss you so, for a day does not pass, that they don't remember their Poppy's love and patience and always will, to the last.

I'll write again soon, Daddy, now I'll close with a heavenly kiss, for you and Precious Nana Carpino, whom we also love and miss.

Your loving daughter,
DOLORES

Report Little Progress In Vance, Korean Talks

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent.

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance met for almost three hours today with South Korea's premier and other top Cabinet ministers, but Korean sources reported they made "very little progress" toward eliminating differences between the United States and its Asian ally.

The meeting was "rough going," one Korean source reported. The conference ranged over problems of the complex crisis resulting from South Korea's worries over her defenses in the face of North Korean threats.

Vance planned another meeting with Premier Chung Il-kwon Wednesday and then was expected to pay his second visit to President Chung Hee Park. Whether that would be Vance's final conference nobody in authority would say, but the presidential envoy already has extended his visit one day, into Wednesday.

To Meet Annually

Korean sources said Vance and the Koreans agreed tentatively that the foreign and defense ministers of the two governments would meet annually to review mutual security problems, with the first meeting to be held in Washington in June. A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy would not comment on the report.

Informed sources also reported that the Koreans were asking the U. S. government to tell North Korea it will denounce the 1953 armistice agreement if the Communists send down any more raiders like the team that tried to assassinate President Park. The South Koreans also reportedly want the Americans to demand that North Korea apologize for the assassination attempt Jan. 21.

One informed Korean source said "very little progress" seemed to have been made toward healing the rift stemming from South Korean feelings that the United States, in its desire to secure the release of the USS Pueblo and its crew, is not paying sufficient attention to South Korean security.

Meanwhile, the U.N. Command announced it would meet Wednesday with North Korea at the Panmunjom truce headquarters to discuss "armistice violations."

North Korean infiltration across the demilitarized zone has increased steadily for more than a year. A U.S. military spokesman said American troops repelled two small groups of North Koreans Monday night and early today in two brief firefights in the U.S.-patroled section of the DMZ. No casualties were reported.

Harassment Campaign

North Korea has been concentrating on the U.S. sector in its harassment campaign along the frontier since it seized the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo Jan. 23.

Th North Koreans broadcast today a second purported confession by Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, skipper of the Pueblo. It repeated the first statement attributed to Bucher that the Pueblo had intruded in North Korean territorial waters.

The new statement added that Bucher is "always gripped by yearning for my family" and "would like to tell them that I am safe and healthy and that they should not worry too much."

"I think that if the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is merciful to us who deserve punishment, we will be sent home and we will be together and in love forever, never again to part," the statement said.

It was not known whether this was intended to set the stage for release of the Pueblo's crew.

No Evidence of Murder Claims Prison Pathologist

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Rodney F. Carlton, the pathologist who examined three skeletons found in unmarked graves at Cummins Prison Farm, said Monday he doubts that they are those of murder victims.

He said two of the skeletons "do not show any evidence of trauma or a violent death." He added that none of the skeletons showed any evidence of decapitation, amputation or mutilation.

Carlton said there were evidences of fractures on the third skeleton but added that he was "inclined to think that they were probably sustained after death."

Carlton said some of the fractures on the third skeleton are fresh. He said, however, that others are definitely older and are consistent with fractures due to blunt trauma.

"There are fractures that are older and make one suspicious that this was due to blunt trauma to the side of the skull," Carlton said. "However, this must be tempered with the knowledge that the fractures could have occurred several years after death due to 'caving in' of the grave."

Carlton said the indications were that the fresh fractures were sustained at the time of excavation or during shipment of the bones to his office.

Reports by inmates of convicts being murdered and secretly buried led to the discovery of the three skeletons Jan. 29. Authorities were led to the spot where the graves were unearthed by Reuben Johnson, 59, a convict who said he helped bury 10 or 12 inmates.

Carlton's report varied from that of Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton who had said that one of the skeletons had no head and that the leg bones of another appeared to have been broken in an attempt to fit it into the coffin.

Carlton said that the deaths probably occurred 25 to 30 years ago according to the state of decay of the coffins.

Carlton also suggested that a pathologist be on hand when digging is resumed. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has asked the state police to investigate the legal aspects of further digging. He says the digging will not be resumed until he is assured it can be done legally.

2 Are Fined $125 on Truck, Firearm Charges

Arrested on charges involving a truck and a revolver, Robert Douglas Stoff, 18, Sawkill Trailer Park, Kingston, and Robert Douglas Burke, 24, of 329 North Drive, Saugerties, today appeared for sentencing before Ulster Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly.

Both had previously pleaded guilty.

Stoff was fined $100 or 100 days in the county jail on a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, and $25 or 25 days on a charge of illegal possession of a firearm. He paid the fines. Burke was fined $25 or 25 days on a charge of illegal possession of a firearm, and received an unconditional discharge on a charge of criminal possession of stolen property. He paid the fine.

The arrests were made by Senior BCI Investigator Charles Teelon of the Kingston State Police, County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the sheriff's office and Deputy Sheriff Henry Newman, as the result of an investigation of a complaint made Saturday night by James Tubby of Esopus, who reported his jeep pickup truck missing from the Capri Restaurant parking lot. Tubby told authorities there was a .38 caliber revolver in the vehicle.

According to police investigators, Stoff allegedly gave the weapon to his cousin, Burke. The truck was found abandoned on Sawkill Road. The gun was missing but later recovered, police said.

Nixon, Romney In Viet Dispute

BY RELMAN MORIN

DOVER, N.H. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is engaged in a sharp campaign dispute with Gov. George Romney of Michigan over American policy in Vietnam.

Nixon has taken a much harder line on the war.

"This is a war we cannot afford to lose," Nixon said in a speech, "for we are fighting in Vietnam not for Vietnam alone but for peace in the Pacific. It is this larger cause that makes it essential that our side prevail."

The former vice president is battling Romney in New Hampshire where the first presidential primary will be held March 12. Only eight delegates are at stake, but politicians attach unusual psychological importance to the election.

Mor than 1,200 persons drove across icy, snow-rimmed roads Monday night to hear Nixon deliver the speech at Dover.

Romney, who spent part of last week in Wisconsin, plans to return to resume his campaigning in New Hampshire tonight.

By contrast to Nixon's position on Vietnam, Romney said recently, "We need to take the peace offensive and show we're not warmongers . . . if we continue down this road, it leads right to World War III."

Romney has twice challenged Nixon to a debate in New Hampshire, but Nixon refused on the ground that such a confrontation would not serve the interests of Republican unity.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my husband, Joseph P. Costello, who died on February 13, 1966.

I had a wonderful husband,
Patient, kind and true,
No other friend in all the world,
Would be as true as you.
For all his loving kindness,
He asked nothing in return,
If all the world deserted me,
To my husband, I could have turned.
To all who have a wonderful husband,
Cherish him with loving care,
You will never know the heartache,
Till you find he is not there.

Loving Wife,

Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph P. Costello Sr. who passed away two years ago today, February 13, 1966.

Dear Daddy:

Two lonely years have sadly passed and it just doesn't seem true; for our hearts are oh, so heavy with love and longing for you!

In the kitchen and out on the course, we look for you everywhere, Oh, God, I pray so hard and through my tears, I vision you there.

Little Cathy still whispers your name, so that I won't hear, for she's afraid to Mommy's eyes, still comes a tear.

Oh, Daddy Dear, all your grandchildren love and miss you so, for a day does not pass, that they don't remember their Poppy's love and patience and always will, to the last.

I'll write again soon, Daddy, now I'll close with a heavenly kiss, for you and Precious Nana Carpino, whom we also love and miss.

Your loving daughter,
DOLORES

Ulster Residents Criticize Canines

Some residents of Whittier in the Town of Ulster think their area is going to the dogs and have expressed that view to State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson.

The Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, on the other hand, blames the problem on owners of dogs who refuse to buy a license for their animals.

The ASPCA release notes that neither they nor dog wardens have the authority to issue summons to delinquent owners. They say the ultimate responsibility lies in the hands of city and town clerks, judges and justices.

The letter from Whittier is signed by Mrs. Ruth Gallenz of 187 Vestal Hills Drive. Mrs. Gallenz, apparently speaking for a group of citizens, asks in her letter to Rolison and Wilson for a revision of the New York State Agricultural and Market Law pertaining to dogs. She claims "dogs and their owners are admirably well protected." But Mrs. Gallenz adds that friends and neighbors of dog owners are at the mercy of the dogs, because "in many cases the owners do not care if their animals are dangerous and/or nuisances."

She tells of a dog which bit someone in the area and was free two days later after being inspected for rabies. He reportedly "ran loose in a heavily populated area" and "literally chased people all the way to their homes.

Mrs. Gallenz writes that the dog bit someone else and five days later was judged mean enough to warrant disposal "which was done."

The letter calls for legal responsibility of owners for their dogs throughout the state. It also asks for the establishment of a limit on the number of dogs in a populated area.

The group will meet to discuss leashing and muzzling laws which apparently do not exist in the town of Ulster at present. Mrs. Gallenz notes, however, that in other towns where such laws are on the books that they are seldom enforced.

Mrs. Gallenz concluded that residents of the Whittier section "do not feel safe to walk on the streets—man, woman and child."

She states that "New York has many fine laws—the Agricultural and Marketing Law is not one of them. May we state most seriously that this state is going to the dogs?"

Efforts in 10th Ward Commended by Gallo

"These people are trying to save their neighborhood and I commend them," Acting Mayor T. Robert Gallo said this morning in reviewing a meeting of the 10th Ward Action Group last night in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Gallo spoke in behalf of Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan who is due back in two weeks from a leave of absence. Attending with Gallo were Peter C. Fisher (R-10th Ward) and Deputy Police Chief Charles A. Hoehing.

Both Hoehing and Gallo took action today on complaints aired last night. Hoehing reported to acting chief Grover Hoffay about residents complaints on trucks parked in the early morning hours in the vicinity of 149 Clinton Avenue. Previously, owners of these trucks had been warned by police but will now be issued summonses for all infractions of the law in any section of the city.

Gallo, acted on complaints that a certain house (he asked that the address not be published) in the 10th Ward had numerous refrigerators with the doors intact. This is a violation of the law in that these doors must be removed as they present a hazard to young children who in the past have been locked in the refrigerators and died of suffocation. Gallo has sent a crew of men to the address with crowbars and orders to remove the doors.

The general discussion centered around federal plans for rehabilitation of the 10th Ward which has been selected for top priority.

Ellenville Educators Vow Action

The Ellenville Board of Education last night agreed to take legal action against the LHJ Corporation of Ellenville if it does not cancel its plans for the construction of the LHJ Airport within 30 days.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR

Investment Advisor & Analyst

No Stock Promises Growth; We Can Only Study Record

Q—I am 16 and would like to invest in some stock that promises growth and is less than $20 a share. Would Roan Selection Trust or Hotel Corp. of America be wise choices?—
R. B.

A—I should like, if I may, to suggest some change in your thinking. You are young and seem bright, but I think you should learn right now that no stock promises growth. We can only study the record of the company, the area in which it operates and the caliber of management—and even then we sometimes get fooled. I would not buy Roan Selection which operates copper mines in Zambi where the political climate can change rapidly.

I like Hotel Corp. because I think that Roger Sonnabend, who succeeded his father as president, has done a fine job. The stock has risen sixfold over the past year, and I believe part of the rise has been due to actual takeover or proposed merger of other chains by Trans World Airlines and International Tel. & Tel. I believe the stock is relatively high on a price-earnings basis and that it has speculative possibilities. For a boy your age I do not recommend it.

I would forget the $20 limit on the price of your prospective purchase. I advise you to aim a little higher and buy Ramada Inns, selling in the upper $20 and showing good growth.

Q—I bought General Telephone & Electronics at 25. However, the market has been vacillating so much that I am frightened to the point of selling. What is your advice, and what would be the ideal time to sell?—
N.B.

A—The ideal time to sell is when a stock reaches its peak, but very few investors sell at the top or buy at the bottom. You hold a good stock, and I advise you to retain it.

(Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.)

Commence Summations In Murder Attempt Case

Summations started this morning in the trial of Donald A. Dunn, 34, of Newburgh, charged with the March 31 murder attempt on the life of Elmer Strickland, 49, of Plattekill, and there was a good possibility that the case would go to the jury late today.

Witnesses for both sides completed their testimony in the case in which defense attorney, Hubert A. Richter, probed for testimony that would indicate that his client was deprived of his constitutional rights when held in custody at the Lake Katrine State Police Barracks.

A motion for dismissal of the indictment against Dunn on that basis was denied by County Judge Raymond J. Mino. The final witnesses were BCI Investigator Roger Gardner and Sgt. William J. Garry, a state police gun expert, who testified on the shotgun used in the incident.

Efforts in 10th Ward Commended by Gallo

"These people are trying to save their neighborhood and I commend them," Acting Mayor T. Robert Gallo said this morning in reviewing a meeting of the 10th Ward Action Group last night in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Gallo spoke in behalf of Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan who is due back in two weeks from a leave of absence. Attending with Gallo were Peter C. Fisher (R-10th Ward) and Deputy Police Chief Charles A. Hoehing.

Both Hoehing and Gallo took action today on complaints aired last night. Hoehing reported to acting chief Grover Hoffay about residents complaints on trucks parked in the early morning hours in the vicinity of 149 Clinton Avenue. Previously, owners of these trucks had been warned by police but will now be issued summonses for all infractions of the law in any section of the city.

Gallo, acted on complaints that a certain house (he asked that the address not be published) in the 10th Ward had numerous refrigerators with the doors intact. This is a violation of the law in that these doors must be removed as they present a hazard to young children who in the past have been locked in the refrigerators and died of suffocation. Gallo has sent a crew of men to the address with crowbars and orders to remove the doors.

The general discussion centered around federal plans for rehabilitation of the 10th Ward which has been selected for top priority.

Ellenville Educators Vow Action

The Ellenville Board of Education last night agreed to take legal action against the LHJ Corporation of Ellenville if it does not cancel its plans for the construction of the LHJ Airport within 30 days.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR

Investment Advisor & Analyst

No Stock Promises Growth; We Can Only Study Record

Q—I am 16 and would like to invest in some stock that promises growth and is less than $20 a share. Would Roan Selection Trust or Hotel Corp. of America be wise choices?—R. B.

A—I should like, if I may, to suggest some change in your thinking. You are young and seem bright, but I think you should learn right now that no stock promises growth. We can only study the record of the company, the area in which it operates and the caliber of management—and even then we sometimes get fooled. I would not buy Roan Selection which operates copper mines in Zambi where the political climate can change rapidly.

I like Hotel Corp. because I think that Roger Sonnabend, who succeeded his father as president, has done a fine job. The stock has risen sixfold over the past year, and I believe part of the rise has been due to actual takeover or proposed merger of other chains by Trans World Airlines and International Tel. & Tel. I believe the stock is relatively high on a price-earnings basis and that it has speculative possibilities. For a boy your age I do not recommend it.

I would forget the $20 limit on the price of your prospective purchase. I advise you to aim a little higher and buy Ramada Inns, selling in the upper $20 and showing good growth.

Q—I bought General Telephone & Electronics at 25. However, the market has been vacillating so much that I am frightened to the point of selling. What is your advice, and what would be the ideal time to sell?—N.B.

A—The ideal time to sell is when a stock reaches its peak, but very few investors sell at the top or buy at the bottom. You hold a good stock, and I advise you to retain it.

Commence Summations In Murder Attempt Case

Summations started this morning in the trial of Donald A. Dunn, 34, of Newburgh, charged with the March 31 murder attempt on the life of Elmer Strickland, 49, of Plattekill, and there was a good possibility that the case would go to the jury late today.

Witnesses for both sides completed their testimony in the case in which defense attorney, Hubert A. Richter, probed for testimony that would indicate that his client was deprived of his constitutional rights when held in custody at the Lake Katrine State Police Barracks.

A motion for dismissal of the indictment against Dunn on that basis was denied by County Judge Raymond J. Mino. The final witnesses were BCI Investigator Roger Gardner and Sgt. William J. Garry, a state police gun expert, who testified on the shotgun used in the incident.

Attorney Richter called the defendant to the stand and the entire matter of apprehension and questioning prior to and after the arrest was reviewed.

The case evolves around a shooting incident in the Town of Plattekill, in which state police reported Elmer Strickland, 48, father of seven, and husband of Lorraine, 38, was hit with shotgun blasts as he entered the front door of his southern Ulster County home shortly before 9 a .m. on the night of March 31.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Usually our shirts and blouses have tags neatly sewed into the collars. After years of ironing down and around them, I started cutting them off the very first time I ironed the garment and the tag got in my way.

This also eliminates the chance of a tag showing while the garment is being worn.

Joann Hunter

I cut them off, too, unless they are open in the middle and I can use them to hang the garment on a hook.

If the name tag describes the material and how to launder it, one could snip the tag off and whip stitch it to the inside of a facing or an inside seam somewhere.

Here is how I melt chocolate when baking:

After I light my oven, I put the chocolate into a piece of aluminum foil, fold over the top and turn up the edges, completely covering the chocolate.

I place it in my "warming" oven and by the time I am ready for it, it is melted.

I pour it into my batter directly from the foil—no messy pan or pastry brush to clean.

My husband suggested this and it's wonderful!

To mend rubber gloves, snip off a piece of a wide rubber band and put a dab of good rubber cement on it, being sure to smear it on the corners. Turn the glove inside out and spread cement around the hole or torn place. Press the patch over the hole and keep it weighted down until dry.

When turned right side out, this gives you a beautiful mend job that lasts. Mine have been mended six months and are still going strong.

Washington Holiday Cake -- Updated Version

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Our first First Lady, Martha Washington, collected recipes for Great Cakes — as they were called in her day. These were cakes rich in butter and eggs, enlivened by spice and laden with sweet dried fruits. Nowadays cooks sometimes adapt her rules.

If you are curious to sample the kind of cake popular at Mount Vernon, we suggest you try baking this Raisin-Currant Cake — an updated version of a Martha Washington rule.

One warning: don't expect this to be a fluffy cake. There's not a particle of baking powder or baking soda in it. Its texture is of the pound cake and fruitcake variety.

RAISIN-CURRANT CAKE

1½ cups seedless raisins
1½ cups currants
1 cup butter
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ cup half and half (commercial mixture of milk and cream)
2½ cups sifted regular flour
5 large eggs
¼ cup dry sherry

Grease the entire inner surface of a two-quart tube pan with butter; sprinkle with flour. Shake the pan back and forth so surface is well coated on bottom and sides; shake out excess flour.

Coarsely chop the raisins. Rinse currants under hot running water; drain; dry on paper toweling.

Have butter room-temperature soft. In a large mixing bowl thoroughly beat together the butter, sugar and vanilla. Add salt, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Stir in the half and half and ½ cup of the flour.

In a medium mixing bowl with an electric mixer at high speed, beat the eggs until thickened add lemon color. Gradually beat into butter mixture. With mixer, at low speed, alternately beat in the remaining 2 cups flour and the sherry to make a thick smooth batter. Stir in the raisins and currants. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven until browned, cake tester inserted in center should come out clean—about one hour and 15 minutes. Let cake stand in pan about 15 minutes, then turn out on wire rack; turn right-side up; cool.

Wrap in transparent plastic wrapping and store in a tightly covered tin box. Cake slices well and will keep for several weeks.

RECIPE NOTES

No leavening such as baking powder or baking soda is called for in this recipe. The beaten eggs act as leavening.

A good size of tube pan to use is one that measures about 9½ by 2½ inches. If you use a deeper, heavy tube pan that is about 9 by 3¾ inches, you will probably have to increase the baking time by five to 10 minutes.

If cake browns too much at very end of baking, gently place a sheet of foil over the top to prevent any raisins or currants that peek out from becoming too brown and dry.

Nowadays raisins are washed and dried before they are packaged so it is not necessary to rinse them before using. Currants are also packed in this sanitary way, but because their crevices are so small, we suggest rinsing them as an extra precaution.

Marriage of Plenty: Crab Over Corn Bread

Vast, versatile and adventurous, ours is a country of combinations. From grasslands, inland lakes, great rivers and two oceans we draw and disperse food. We take culture and custom from the past and the present about us, our natural borders seeping British, French, Spanish and Aztec tradition.—And America is herself founded and fed on a pervasive, healthful diversity.

It is a progressive country of plentiful corn — from Indian maize and colonial nasaump (meal pottage) to the conveniently packaged corn products and mixes that pamper modern homemakers. But coastal access and lifeline lakes bring sea as well as land abundance — and seafood, too, has long and well nourished the nation.

This recipe for Crab Over Corn Bread is a delicious luncheon or supper rarebit. It reflects the American regard for combination and convenience, and speaks through three easy "progress products" for America today.

The corn bread base starts with a quick mix—so convenient there's a plastic mixer bag and throw-away pan right in the box. The seafood-Cheddar cheese topping takes frozen crab meat and canned cream soup in exact purchase quantities.

Would your grandmother call that pampering? Yes, she would. But there's a great American heritage — her heritage — behind it.

CRAB OVER CORN BREAD—The abundance in America of both corn and seafood inspires this delicious rarebit. Frozen, canned and packaged product ingredients reflect the convenience, as well as the taste, to which America turns.

Heat oven to hot (425°F.). For corn bread, put egg and milk into bag of mix. Squeeze upper part of bag to force air out. Close top of bag by holding tightly between thumb and index finger. With bag resting on table, mix by working bag vigorously with fingers. Mix about 40 seconds or until egg is completely blended.

Squeeze bag to empty batter into special aluminum foil pan contained in package. (Do not grease pan.) Bake in preheated (425°F.) about 20 minutes.

For rarebit, melt butter in large saucepan. Saute green pepper until tender. Add soup, tomato juice, Worcestershire sauce, milk and cheese. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until cheese is melted and sauce is smooth. Add crab meat. Combine cornstarch and water. Add to mixture. Bring to boil. Cook about 1 minute or until thickened, stirring constantly.

Cut corn bread in 6 pieces. Split each piece horizontally. Place on cookie sheet and broil until lightly browned. Spoon crab meat rarebit over toasted corn bread pieces. Serve immediately.

THE PROPER USE OF "SIR"

Dear Mrs. Post: "Sir" is such a gracious address of respect. Please clarify its use. May a woman properly use "Sir" when addressing someone she has just met? I am of retired years and sometimes have been introduced to charming old gentlemen where the term "Sir" just seems the proper thing to say.—Mrs. C. J. Tyner.

Dear Mrs. Tyner: As you said, "Sir" is a title of respect, but it implies an inferior position on the part of the speaker. Therefore, it is never used between people of equal age and status. No matter how charming a gentleman may be, a woman of the same age does not address him as "sir." On rare occasions, an older man may say "Sir" to a contemporary, especially if he doesn't know the other's name. It is also used as a means of addressing very distinguished people.

In the South, many youngsters are taught to address their elders as "Ma'am" and "Sir." This is considered correct since it is the local custom, but they should be taught the distinction between using the term for a family friend and using it for a waiter or employe. I have heard young Southern girls calling a waiter "Sir" in an effort to be polite, but this is incorrect.

Birthday Presents for Teachers

Dear Mrs. Post: Are students expected to bring their teacher a gift when it is her birthday?
—Marge

Dear Marge: Individual students need not give their teachers birthday gifts. If the class as a whole is fond of the teacher, the students may wish to contribute to a single gift, but it is not a gesture that is required or even "expected."

Wife's Use of "Jr."

Dear Mrs. Post: Our son-in-law is a "junior" and this title is affixed to his name. When our daughter uses her new name on legal papers, does she sign it "Mrs. Mary J. Alison, Jr."? Or is the Jr. used only when his full name is written, such as "Mrs. Arnold J. Alison, Jr."—Mrs. W. G.

Dear Mrs. G.: Your daughter's legal signature should be "Mary J. Alison" with neither "Mrs." nor "Jr." A married woman is only rarely addressed as "Mrs. Mary Alison" and never in social correspondence. For that she always uses her husband's name—including the Jr.

Washington Holiday Cake -- Updated Version

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Our first First Lady, Martha Washington, collected recipes for Great Cakes — as they were called in her day. These were cakes rich in butter and eggs, enlivened by spice and laden with sweet dried fruits. Nowadays cooks sometimes adapt her rules.

If you are curious to sample the kind of cake popular at Mount Vernon, we suggest you try baking this Raisin-Currant Cake — an updated version of a Martha Washington rule.

One warning: don't expect this to be a fluffy cake. There's not a particle of baking powder or baking soda in it. Its texture is of the pound cake and fruitcake variety.

RAISIN-CURRANT CAKE

1½ cups seedless raisins
1½ cups currants
1 cup butter
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ cup half and half (commercial mixture of milk and cream)
2½ cups sifted regular flour
5 large eggs
¼ cup dry sherry

Grease the entire inner surface of a two-quart tube pan with butter; sprinkle with flour. Shake the pan back and forth so surface is well coated on bottom and sides; shake out excess flour.

Coarsely chop the raisins. Rinse currants under hot running water; drain; dry on paper toweling.

Have butter room-temperature soft. In a large mixing bowl thoroughly beat together the butter, sugar and vanilla. Add salt, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Stir in the half and half and ½ cup of the flour.

In a medium mixing bowl with an electric mixer at high speed, beat the eggs until thickened add lemon color. Gradually beat into butter mixture. With mixer, at low speed, alternately beat in the remaining 2 cups flour and the sherry to make a thick smooth batter. Stir in the raisins and currants. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven until browned, cake tester inserted in center should come out clean—about one hour and 15 minutes. Let cake stand in pan about 15 minutes, then turn out on wire rack; turn right-side up; cool.

Wrap in transparent plastic wrapping and store in a tightly covered tin box. Cake slices well and will keep for several weeks.

RECIPE NOTES

No leavening such as baking powder or baking soda is called for in this recipe. The beaten eggs act as leavening.

A good size of tube pan to use is one that measures about 9½ by 2½ inches. If you use a deeper, heavy tube pan that is about 9 by 3¾ inches, you will probably have to increase the baking time by five to 10 minutes.

If cake browns too much at very end of baking, gently place a sheet of foil over the top to prevent any raisins or currants that peek out from becoming too brown and dry.

Nowadays raisins are washed and dried before they are packaged so it is not necessary to rinse them before using. Currants are also packed in this sanitary way, but because their crevices are so small, we suggest rinsing them as an extra precaution.

Hawks Open Three-Game Slate Against Maritime

SECOND GOLD MEDAL — Gold medalist Toini Gustafsson (C) of Sweden is joined by her runners-up in Ladies' cross country ski race after winning the event with a time of 16 minutes, 45.2 seconds in the Winter Olympics at Autrans, France. It was the second gold medal won by the 30-year-old mother in the games. Russia's Galina Koulakova (L), 26, placed second with a time of 16:48.4 and former world champion Alevtina Koltchina, 37, was clocked at 16:51.6. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

State University Hawks of New Paltz can achieve their first two-game winning streak of the season by whipping New York State Maritime Wednesday in the friendly confines of Elting Gym.

The Hawks have won 5 of 14 games this season but never two back-to-back.

The sailors come to town with something less than glittering credentials, having lost all their 10 games to date. The Hawks, meanwhile, are fresh off a 47-46 thriller over Fredonia.

"This is a very young team," he says and while we're 0-10, we've lost some toughies.

Eight Freshmen

Eight of the 12 Maritime players are freshmen. The leading scorere is Bernie Palmeeri, a 6-2 forward, who is hiting at a 20.3 per game clip. He represents one-third of the club's attack as the team has an offense average of only 62.1.

Danbury State, a victim of New Paltz, routed Maritime 73-41 and they lost to Plattsburgh of the SUNYAC, 97-76.

Marist, an early season Hawks victim, routed Maritime 101-77. These lopsided scores all add up to sugar plums and fairies for the Hawks, who face tough road tests this weekend at Brockport and Geneseo.

Shuster Hitting 17

With Ty Sands' departure, Big Ed Shuster, the 6-5 senior from Shuster, the 6-5 senior from Haverstown, Pa., has taken over the team scoring leadership with a 17.0 average in 14 games. Runnerup is Peter Kane with 13.4 average.

Disqualify German Women

Hanky-Panky at the Olympics

VILLARD-de-LANS, France (AP) — The two East German leaders in the women's luge competition were disqualified today for illegally heating their sled runners after the fourth and final heats in the men's and women's singles were postponed because of rising temperatures.

Ortrun Enderlein and Anna Maria Mueller, running 1-2 after the first three women's heats, were disqualified, along with East German teammate Angela Knoesel, who was in fourth place.

The disqualifications sent Erica Lechner of Italy from third place into the lead with a combined time of two minutes, 28.66 seconds. Two West German girls, Christa Schmuck and Angelika Duenhaupt, moved up to the second and third positions with clockings of 2:29.37 and 2:29.56 respectively.

Austria's Manfred Schmid held the lead in the men's singles when the final run was called off.

The disqualifications in the women's event moved Kathy Roberts, 16, of Miles City, Mont., from 17th to 14th place in the field of 21 eligibles. Kathy had a combined clocking of 2:33.60 for her three runs.

Ellen Williams of Old Tappan, N.J., was 16th in 2:35.15 and Sheila Johansen of Billings, Mont., was 17th in 2:35.47 in the revised standings.

Bobsleds Start

ALPE D'HUEZ, France (AP) — Official training runs for the Olympic four-man bobsled competition began today at dawn after a four-day delay caused by unseasonable mild weather.

U.S. entries were more than three seconds off the pace set by Switzerland's No. 1 sled a 27 four-man crews from 11 countries tuned up in the two-hour compulsory session, which was completed without incident.

BULLETIN

CHAMROUSSE, France (AP) —Marielle Goitschel of France won the women's slalom Tuesday in the Winter Olympics as misfortune again struck the United States ski team and left it without a medal.

The 1,500-meter ice chute satisfactorily withstood the heavy pressure of the flashing bobs, each weighing about 1,400 pounds. Track officials hoped that all crews would be able to have at least three days of time trials before the race, set for Friday and Saturday.

The No. 1 Swiss sled, with Jean Wicki, Hans Candrian, Willi Hoffmann and Walter Graf, was the first to slide down the 14-curve chute and turned in the best time—one minute, 9.51 seconds—while averaging more than 60 miles per hour.

Austrian sleds had the second and third best times.

The No. 1 U.S. bob, with William Hickey, Keeseville, N.Y., Howard Clifton, Elnora, N.Y., Michael Luce, Keene Valley, N.Y., and Paul Savage, Ausable Forks, N.Y., aboard, finished in 19th place with a time of 1:12.18.

The No. 3 and No. 2 American sleds were 21st and 26th with times of 1:12.44 and 1:15.63.

Hockey Team Aroused

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The much-maligned U.S. hockey team has sounded a grim warning to future opponents in the Winter Olympic Games.

"We are going to do some killing from here on," Coach Murray Williamson said after the United States had stormed to an 8-1 victory over West Germany Monday, the Americans' first victory after four straight losses.

"We needed a game like this," the young, Canadian-born coach said. "We are not giving anything to anyone. From here on in, look out for the United States."

"If we'd started the tournament with this game, we'd be hanging tough," he said, almost wistfully.

As it is, it's impossible for the Americans to gain a medal. They're 1-4 with two games remaining in the round robin tournament. Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden are 4-0 with three games remaining. Canada is 3-1 with three games to go.

The United States was shut out of the medals again Monday, but Billy Kidd turned in the day's best performance in the giant slalom, won by France's fantastic Jean-Claude Killy.

Killy took a second heat run down the 57-gate, 1,780-meter course in 1:46.54 for a combined time of 3:29.28 and an easy victory.

Kidd, of Stowe, Vt., a silver medalist in the event four years ago, had the day's best time, 1:46.46, which lifted him from eighth after the first run to fifth over-all with a combined time of 3:32.37.

Jim Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif., the bronze medal winner in 1964, finished 10th with a time of 1:48.43 for 3:33.89.

Jeanne Ashworth, Wilmington, N.Y., managed only a 10th-place finish behind winner Johanna Schut of the Netherlands in the women's 3,000-meter speed skating and Army Cpl. Ralph C. Wakely, Murray, Utah, was the top American, 27th, in the biathlon. His time was one hour, 27 minutes, 32.9 seconds. The event was won by Magnar Solberg of Norway in 1:13:45.9.

Bad Blow for U.S.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The United States Alpine ski team, beset by injuries through the early part of the Winter Olympic Games, had its first triumph all but wiped out today when three contenders were disqualified in the first run of the women's slalom — leaving spunky teenager Judy Nagel to battle for the gold medal.

Judy, a 16-year-old latecomer to the U.S. Olympic squad from Enumclaw, Wash., streaked into the lead over favored Marielle Goitschel of France and Nancy Greene of Canada in the first of two slalom runs on the slopes above Chamrousse.

But Wendy Allen of San Pedro, Calif., was disqualified for missing a gate after posting the best time of all 49 entrants and Rosie Fortna of Warren, Vt., and Kiki Cutter of Bend, Ore., also were set down after flashing into contending positions.

'It's just terrible luck for these great kids," said Bob Beattie, coach of the U.S. Alpine team, who has struggled through injuries to four of his top men and women skiers while chasing the elusive medal cluster he had hoped for.

If you saw the feature story on Mrs. Edward Reynolds, Jr. of Lake Katrine in Saturday's issue, you realize she is an extremely attractive young woman.

The basis of the feature, written by staffer Chris Gehman, was the fact that Mrs. Reynolds, a ski instructor at Hunter Mountain, has two sisters competing in the 10th Winter Olympics.

Before the edition hit the streets, Mrs. Reynolds' sister Olga Pall had won the coveted Women's Downhill Race at Grenoble, France.

Beauty, obviously is a family characteristic. An AP wirephoto showed Olga getting bussed by France's glamor skier Jean-Claude Killy, the dark, handsome gentleman who many consider the finest ski racer of all time.

One wire association story said Olga Pall "is considered one of the prettiest girls ever to squeeze into a stretch suit." Olga, who stands about 5 feet, 6 inches and weights 144 pounds is regarded as one of the shapeliest girl's in the entire women's Olympic women's field.

When the dark-haired, shapely Olga mounted the rostrum for the traditional winners interview after the downhill victory, she was asked if she ever considered making a movie after a victory.

Well no, I prefer shooting down a track rather than shooting a movie," Olga replied with a wide smile.

Considered the sharpest wit on the Austrian girls team, Olga was asked about the little elephant she had pinned to her tight fitting racing suit during the race for good luck.

"I won't tell you who it was, but I can assure you it was a very nice young man," she replied.

We congratulate Mrs. Reynolds on Olga's success and her new found world acclaim. And the whole family for its obvious collective pulchritude.

State University College at Albany is plugging Rich Margison, 6-foot-1, 165-pound junior from Cortland, for nomination in the basketball Little All America.

Through 15 games, Margison scored 333 points, an average of 22.2 per game, while leading Albany to a 12-3 mark and 9-game winning streak. He is shooting 53.9 per cent from the field (124 for 230) and 81.7 in fouls (79 for 97), with a 9.1 per game rebound average.

In 36 varsity games, including 21 last year, Margison has never been under double figures. He scored 38 against Rochester Tech last month, just two points short of the Albany record and has had games of 31, 29, 27 and 25 ((twice) this season. He outscored Jim Robinson of Rochester Tech, 38-22, in head-to-head competition when Robinson was leading the nation's NCAA College Division with a 34.3 average.

UCCC at Dutchess In Wednesday Game

Ulster County CC's 20-2 Senators launch the final phase of their 1967-68 campaign with two games this week—one on the road and one at home.

The Senators visit Dutchess County Community College Wednesday night, where their 5-14 hosts are not likely to cause them much trouble.

UCCC plays a Saturday night home game with Westchester CC at the municipal auditorium. Only a road contest at Sullivan on Feb. 19 and the season's finale with Rockland on Feb. 22 remain on this year's slate.

The Feb. 27 game at Fulton-Montgomery contest has been canceled in anticipation of an invitation to the Region XV tournament at Trenton in March. The invitation is almost a certainty.

Two former DCSL stars pose Dutchess' main scoring threats against Ulster tomorrow night. Richie Lawrence, former DCSL all-star from Poughkeepsie, leads the team with a 23-point average. Ed Sweeney, who starred for Roosevelt High, is hitting at an 18-point clip.

Joe Uhl's 45-point barrage against Long Island Aggies sent his seasonal average soaring to 33.2 for 22 games. Leon Hanna has moved into second place with 14.6.

Other team averages to date: Rod Chando, 12.5; Frank Roselli, 11.2; Mike Derrenbacher, 5.3; Fred Zilliox, 5.2; Stan Henderson, 5.2; Ty Quill, 4.2.

Ulster has scored 2,562 points in 22 games for a 116.4. Opposing teams have scored at a 79.8 clip against the locals.

LINDY FARAGALLI

National Star

Lindy Faragalli Is Hall Fame Speaker

Lindy Faragalli of Wayne, N. J., long recognized as one of the great bowlers in the country, will be the principal speaker at the Kingston Bowling Association's Hall of Fame ceremonies on March 16 at the Capri in Port Ewen.

Gilbert Sampson and Kenneth Williams will be inducted into the hall. A posthumous citation will be awarded Harry Styles.

The 57-year-old Faragalli shot into national prominence in 1957 when he hit the television jackpot by rolling a perfect "300' game worth $10,000.

Won ABC All-Events

In 1958, Lindy won the ABC All-Events Championship with an outstanding score of 2043—a 227 average for the singles, doubles and team events. Only the year before, Faragalli teamed with Lou Campi to win the BPAA National Doubles titles. He is also in third place on the all-time list for sanctioned "300" games with 12, and is in second place on the all-time list for 800 sanctioned series with five.

Other honors that have been accorded him are the placing of his name on the ABC Hall of Fame ballot for 1966, being included on the 10-year-average list in the ABC tournament, and maintaining a 200 average for the last five years. He also led the 20-year ABC tournament in 1965.

Renowned Instructor

Besides being an outstanding bowler, this father of two daughters is a renowned instructor, traveling throughout the country teaching many thousands the proper way to bowl. He also finds time to make many appearances at Veterans Administration hospitals in many states, helping veterans to participate in organized athletics to assist them in their recovery.

The Hall of Fame dinner is open to the public and tickets may be purchased from any member of the KBA's executive committee.

43 Magic Number

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Forty-three was the magic number in the American Basketball Association Monday night.

That was the number of points poured in by three separate players. Cincy Powell shattered a Dallas scoring record with his 43 in a 114-101 victory over Denver, snapping the Chaparrals' six-game losing string.

On the West Coast, Ben Warley and Willie Somerset matched that total as Warley's Anaheim club nipped Houston and Somerset, 145-142 in overtime.

Warley also set an ABA record, hitting 16 straight baskets, snapping the previous mark of 10 by teammate Lefty Thomas, set last month.

In other ABA games, New Jersey downed New Orleans 118-109 and Kentucky stopped Eastern Division leader Pittsburgh 131-107.

In the only National Basketball Association game, Chicago tripped Cincinnati 112-104 in overtime.

Bing's 27 Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Bing, Detroit's super sophomore, continues his scoring lead in the National Basketball Association, figures released today show.

Bing tops the league's scorers with 1,642 points in 59 games, for an average of 27.8. Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati has the best average, 29.9 on 1,405 points in 47 games.

Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia continues to lead in two categories, field goal percentage, .576, and rebounds, 1,429 or 23.8 a game. He's also No. 2 in assists, 466 for a 7.8 average.

Len Wilkens of St. Louis leads in assists, 520, for an average of 8.1. Robertson tops the foul shooters with a mark of .873. He also has the best average in assists, 9.1.

SECOND GOLD MEDAL — Gold medalist Toini Gustafsson (C) of Sweden is joined by her runners-up in Ladies' cross country ski race after winning the event with a time of 16 minutes, 45.2 seconds in the Winter Olympics at Autrans, France. It was the second gold medal won by the 30-year-old mother in the games. Russia's Galina Koulakova (L), 26, placed second with a time of 16:48.4 and former world champion Alevtina Koltchina, 37, was clocked at 16:51.6. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

State University Hawks of New Paltz can achieve their first two-game winning streak of the season by whipping New York State Maritime Wednesday in the friendly confines of Elting Gym.

The Hawks have won 5 of 14 games this season but never two back-to-back.

The sailors come to town with something less than glittering credentials, having lost all their 10 games to date. The Hawks, meanwhile, are fresh off a 47-46 thriller over Fredonia.

"This is a very young team," he says and while we're 0-10, we've lost some toughies.

Eight Freshmen

Eight of the 12 Maritime players are freshmen. The leading scorere is Bernie Palmeeri, a 6-2 forward, who is hiting at a 20.3 per game clip. He represents one-third of the club's attack as the team has an offense average of only 62.1.

Danbury State, a victim of New Paltz, routed Maritime 73-41 and they lost to Plattsburgh of the SUNYAC, 97-76.

Marist, an early season Hawks victim, routed Maritime 101-77. These lopsided scores all add up to sugar plums and fairies for the Hawks, who face tough road tests this weekend at Brockport and Geneseo.

Shuster Hitting 17

With Ty Sands' departure, Big Ed Shuster, the 6-5 senior from Shuster, the 6-5 senior from Haverstown, Pa., has taken over the team scoring leadership with a 17.0 average in 14 games. Runnerup is Peter Kane with 13.4 average.

Disqualify German Women

Hanky-Panky at the Olympics

VILLARD-de-LANS, France (AP) — The two East German leaders in the women's luge competition were disqualified today for illegally heating their sled runners after the fourth and final heats in the men's and women's singles were postponed because of rising temperatures.

Ortrun Enderlein and Anna Maria Mueller, running 1-2 after the first three women's heats, were disqualified, along with East German teammate Angela Knoesel, who was in fourth place.

The disqualifications sent Erica Lechner of Italy from third place into the lead with a combined time of two minutes, 28.66 seconds. Two West German girls, Christa Schmuck and Angelika Duenhaupt, moved up to the second and third positions with clockings of 2:29.37 and 2:29.56 respectively.

Austria's Manfred Schmid held the lead in the men's singles when the final run was called off.

The disqualifications in the women's event moved Kathy Roberts, 16, of Miles City, Mont., from 17th to 14th place in the field of 21 eligibles. Kathy had a combined clocking of 2:33.60 for her three runs.

Ellen Williams of Old Tappan, N.J., was 16th in 2:35.15 and Sheila Johansen of Billings, Mont., was 17th in 2:35.47 in the revised standings.

Bobsleds Start

ALPE D'HUEZ, France (AP) — Official training runs for the Olympic four-man bobsled competition began today at dawn after a four-day delay caused by unseasonable mild weather.

U.S. entries were more than three seconds off the pace set by Switzerland's No. 1 sled a 27 four-man crews from 11 countries tuned up in the two-hour compulsory session, which was completed without incident.

BULLETIN

CHAMROUSSE, France (AP) —Marielle Goitschel of France won the women's slalom Tuesday in the Winter Olympics as misfortune again struck the United States ski team and left it without a medal.

The 1,500-meter ice chute satisfactorily withstood the heavy pressure of the flashing bobs, each weighing about 1,400 pounds. Track officials hoped that all crews would be able to have at least three days of time trials before the race, set for Friday and Saturday.

The No. 1 Swiss sled, with Jean Wicki, Hans Candrian, Willi Hoffmann and Walter Graf, was the first to slide down the 14-curve chute and turned in the best time—one minute, 9.51 seconds—while averaging more than 60 miles per hour.

Austrian sleds had the second and third best times.

The No. 1 U.S. bob, with William Hickey, Keeseville, N.Y., Howard Clifton, Elnora, N.Y., Michael Luce, Keene Valley, N.Y., and Paul Savage, Ausable Forks, N.Y., aboard, finished in 19th place with a time of 1:12.18.

The No. 3 and No. 2 American sleds were 21st and 26th with times of 1:12.44 and 1:15.63.

Hockey Team Aroused

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The much-maligned U.S. hockey team has sounded a grim warning to future opponents in the Winter Olympic Games.

"We are going to do some killing from here on," Coach Murray Williamson said after the United States had stormed to an 8-1 victory over West Germany Monday, the Americans' first victory after four straight losses.

"We needed a game like this," the young, Canadian-born coach said. "We are not giving anything to anyone. From here on in, look out for the United States."

"If we'd started the tournament with this game, we'd be hanging tough," he said, almost wistfully.

As it is, it's impossible for the Americans to gain a medal. They're 1-4 with two games remaining in the round robin tournament. Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden are 4-0 with three games remaining. Canada is 3-1 with three games to go.

The United States was shut out of the medals again Monday, but Billy Kidd turned in the day's best performance in the giant slalom, won by France's fantastic Jean-Claude Killy.

Killy took a second heat run down the 57-gate, 1,780-meter course in 1:46.54 for a combined time of 3:29.28 and an easy victory.

Kidd, of Stowe, Vt., a silver medalist in the event four years ago, had the day's best time, 1:46.46, which lifted him from eighth after the first run to fifth over-all with a combined time of 3:32.37.

Jeanne Ashworth, Wilmington, N.Y., managed only a 10th-place finish behind winner Johanna Schut of the Netherlands in the women's 3,000-meter speed skating and Army Cpl. Ralph C. Wakely, Murray, Utah, was the top American, 27th, in the biathlon. His time was one hour, 27 minutes, 32.9 seconds. The event was won by Magnar Solberg of Norway in 1:13:45.9.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Senate has passed a measure that would limit water skiing in the state to daylight hours.

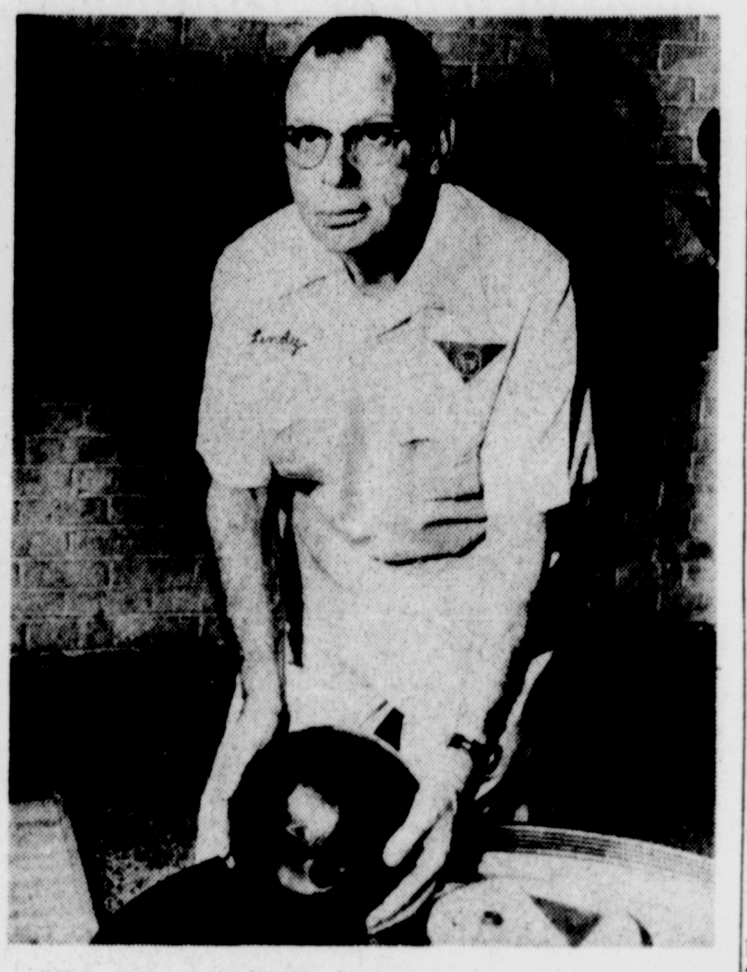
The measure was sent to the Assembly after winning unanimous approval in the Senate Monday.

It would be an amendment to the state's navigation laws.



LINDY FARAGALLI

National Star

Lindy Faragalli Is Hall Fame Speaker

Lindy Faragalli of Wayne, N. J., long recognized as one of the great bowlers in the country, will be the principal speaker at the Kingston Bowling Association's Hall of Fame ceremonies on March 16 at the Capri in Port Ewen.

Gilbert Sampson and Kenneth Williams will be inducted into the hall. A posthumous citation will be awarded Harry Styles.

The 57-year-old Faragalli shot into national prominence in 1957 when he hit the television jackpot by rolling a perfect "300' game worth $10,000.

Won ABC All-Events

In 1958, Lindy won the ABC All-Events Championship with an outstanding score of 2043—a 227 average for the singles, doubles and team events. Only the year before, Faragalli teamed with Lou Campi to win the BPAA National Doubles titles. He is also in third place on the all-time list for sanctioned "300" games with 12, and is in second place on the all-time list for 800 sanctioned series with five.

Other honors that have been accorded him are the placing of his name on the ABC Hall of Fame ballot for 1966, being included on the 10-year-average list in the ABC tournament, and maintaining a 200 average for the last five years. He also led the 20-year ABC tournament in 1965.

Renowned Instructor

Besides being an outstanding bowler, this father of two daughters is a renowned instructor, traveling throughout the country teaching many thousands the proper way to bowl. He also finds time to make many appearances at Veterans Administration hospitals in many states, helping veterans to participate in organized athletics to assist them in their recovery.

The Hall of Fame dinner is open to the public and tickets may be purchased from any member of the KBA's executive committee.

43 Magic Number

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Forty-three was the magic number in the American Basketball Association Monday night.

That was the number of points poured in by three separate players. Cincy Powell shattered a Dallas scoring record with his 43 in a 114-101 victory over Denver, snapping the Chaparrals' six-game losing string.

On the West Coast, Ben Warley and Willie Somerset matched that total as Warley's Anaheim club nipped Houston and Somerset, 145-142 in overtime.

Warley also set an ABA record, hitting 16 straight baskets, snapping the previous mark of 10 by teammate Lefty Thomas, set last month.

In other ABA games, New Jersey downed New Orleans 118-109 and Kentucky stopped Eastern Division leader Pittsburgh 131-107.

In the only National Basketball Association game, Chicago tripped Cincinnati 112-104 in overtime.

Bing's 27 Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Bing, Detroit's super sophomore, continues his scoring lead in the National Basketball Association, figures released today show.

Bing tops the league's scorers with 1,642 points in 59 games, for an average of 27.8. Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati has the best average, 29.9 on 1,405 points in 47 games.

Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia continues to lead in two categories, field goal percentage, .576, and rebounds, 1,429 or 23.8 a game. He's also No. 2 in assists, 466 for a 7.8 average.

Len Wilkens of St. Louis leads in assists, 520, for an average of 8.1. Robertson tops the foul shooters with a mark of .873. He also has the best average in assists, 9.1.

Can Lonborg, Marichal Regain Winning Form?

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Baseball spring training means six weeks of sun in Florida, Arizona or California where managers usually try to separate the men from the boys. It's a bit different this time.

Almost every American League manager will be asking:

"How does Jim Lonborg look over at Winter Haven?"

They will be saying that until they see the 22-game winner of th Boston Red Sox work in a late spring exhibition game, if that's possible.

Lonborg is the young pitcher who made it big last season. He won 22 games in pitching the Red Sox to the pennant then hurled two great games in the World Series, the first of which was a one-hitter.

He signed a $50,000 contract for 1968. Then at Christmas time he almost broke a leg skiing around Lake Tahoe, Nev., and underwent an operation for torn ligaments in his left knee. Any predictions about another Boston pennant must await Lonborg's effectiveness.

How About Desire

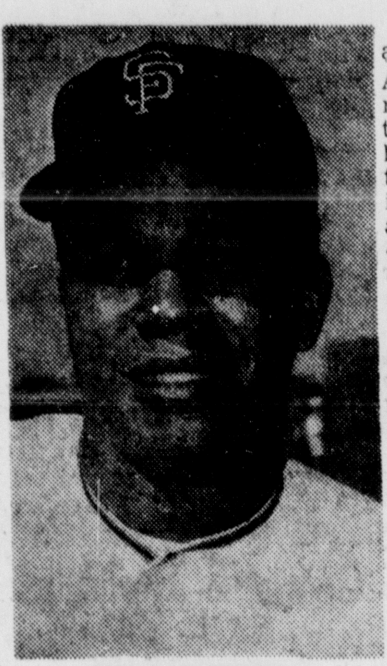
In the National League, managers will be asking:

"Has Juan Marichal got a desire to pitch?"

"I don't think I can pitch any more." Marichal said when he walked off the mound last Aug. 25.

The high-kicking 30-year-old Dominican Republic star who had won 21 to 25 games a season for four years won 14 games in 1967. He was dissatisfied with his performances after pulling a hamstring muscle in his left leg last Aug. 4.

Marichal said the injury affected his delivery. The Giants told him to forget about it and pitch. Juan was in anything but a wonderful mood when the season ended.



JUAN MARICHAL

The Philadelphia Phillies also appear to have problems. Rich Allen, their slugging third baseman, put his right hand through the headlights of his car when he tried to push it. Reports are that the hand isn't as strong as it used to be. Allen, regarded as a superstar in 1966 when he hit 40 home runs, fell to 23 homers and missed 40 games last season.

First baseman Bill White, who severed an Achilles tendon in December, 1966, got in only 110 games last year and hit .250. He has to go some to match the White who drove in 103 runs in '66. Last year he had only 33 RBIs.

Pitching Hurt Orioles

Baltimore, the team that trimmed the Los Angeles Dodgers in the '66 World Series and then slipped because of inadequate pitching, has a big question mark in Jim Palmer, their 15-game winner during the all-victorious campaign.

Palmer had such a bad shoulder that the Orioles shipped him to Rochester, N.Y., in June. He came back in Septmber but with the Orioles about to finish sixth, didn't push himself. Palmer won only three games and had only nine starts last season. His tonsils were removed last December and his shoulder no longer is sore. But he must prove himself again.

JIM LONBORG

Seven teams will be starting the spring with new managers. There's Cal Ermer with the Minnesota Twins, Jim Lemon in Washington, Alvin Dark in Cleveland and Bob Kennedy with the Oakland Athletics, nee Kansas City, in the American League. In the National it's Gil Hodges running the New York Mets, Larry Shepard handling the Pittsburgh Pirates and Lum Harris making out lineup cards for the Atlanta Braves.

And the first pitcher with the nervous habit of putting his fingers to his lips will get a scolding from the umpire.

Whether he throws the spitball or not, a pitcher can't finger his lips any longer, not even in spring training.

Advance Tix For Pine Bush

Onteora High School's basketball fans will have to purchase tickets to Friday's OCS-Pine Bush clash in advance, according to Paul Jordan, OCS Athletic Director.

Since Pine Bush has limited seating capacity, all tickets are on a reserved basis. There will be no tickets sold at the door.

Jordan has an allotment including 50 adult tickets. Any adult interested in purchasing tickets should contact him at home or at OCS.

Bowlers Better So Is the Pay

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Those who knock down the most pins win the most money.

It's as simple as that if you are one of the eight or nine million men and women in America's sanctioned bowling leagues.

These men and women who hold American Bowling Congress cards, bowl once or twice a week in company or neighborhood tournaments. Often the money amounts to a few dollars, maybe a trophy and the annual dinner.

But there are two other groups of bowlers. There are some 32 million who bowl for fun and no money. Their averages run from a low of 80 to perhaps a high of 150. They are men, women and children of all shapes, sizes and ages.

The other group is the 900-member Professional Bowlers Association. They bowl for real money—$1.7 million during 1968.

The top 20 professional bowlers were separated by only five pins per game in 1967, reports the PBA. Their averages were between 212 and 207.

Jim Stefanich of Juliet, Ill., won about $40,000 last year and averaged 236 pins per game to win the $100,000 Tournament of Champions in Akron last April. He rolled 37 straight games of 200 or better to do it, a world's record.

Men in sanctioned leagues have been averaging about 153 while women do well to average 135. "There's hope," reports the ABC, "because these bowlers may have gone up one pin in their averages over the past several years."

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Lonborg's progress in recovering from surgery to repair knee damage suffered in a skiing accident is right on schedule.

The Boston Red Sox' ace right-hander had a smaller cast placed on his left leg Monday, then donned a sock and shoe for the first time in six weeks and cast aside his crutches.

Although doctors figure that Lonborg will not be available for full-time pitching duty until mid-May, he said he hopes he'll be ready sooner.

Prediction:
people who buy Volkswagen Station Wagons will have it soft in 1968.

Which could grind out up to 23 miles on a gallon of gas. And take in over 176 cubic feet of whatever you wanted to carry.

Yet in spite of all that, certain people have been avoiding the VW Station Wagon. Mentioning names is unnecessary. You know who you are.

And we know why you've been avoiding our wagon. Because driving it was something of a big, tough, never-say-die experience. The fact is, our wagon lacked luxury.

Okay, all you people. Get ready for a surprise.

We've taken the Volkswagen Station Wagon and padded the stuffing out of it. We've put extra padding on the armrests, the dash, the front of the ashtray, even the window crank knobs. And if our wagon can't exactly be called a bed of roses even now, it can at least be called a seat of them. (We went somewhat crazy with padding in that particular area.)

Then we put in 6 ventilation ducts all over. (You'll be able to give yourself airs if you own a new VW wagon.)

We also added a whole new suspension system underneath. (It'll be easy come, easy go, all the way.)

And with all of that, the new bus for softies still has the old bus' hardy virtues.

So 1968 should be a good year for all you people who love your comfort. You've been going without the Volkswagen Station Wagon's wonderful gas mileage and storage capacity for a long time now.

But you don't have to deny yourselves anymore.

Can Lonborg, Marichal Regain Winning Form?

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Baseball spring training means six weeks of sun in Florida, Arizona or California where managers usually try to separate the men from the boys. It's a bit different this time.

Almost every American League manager will be asking:

"How does Jim Lonborg look over at Winter Haven?"

They will be saying that until they see the 22-game winner of th Boston Red Sox work in a late spring exhibition game, if that's possible.

Lonborg is the young pitcher who made it big last season. He won 22 games in pitching the Red Sox to the pennant then hurled two great games in the World Series, the first of which was a one-hitter.

He signed a $50,000 contract for 1968. Then at Christmas time he almost broke a leg skiing around Lake Tahoe, Nev., and underwent an operation for torn ligaments in his left knee. Any predictions about another Boston pennant must await Lonborg's effectiveness.

How About Desire

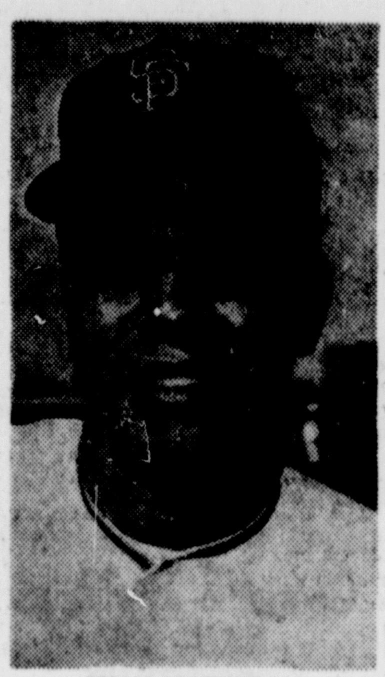
In the National League, managers will be asking:

"Has Juan Marichal got a desire to pitch?"

"I don't think I can pitch any more." Marichal said when he walked off the mound last Aug. 25.

The high-kicking 30-year-old Dominican Republic star who had won 21 to 25 games a season for four years won 14 games in 1967. He was dissatisfied with his performances after pulling a hamstring muscle in his left leg last Aug. 4.

Marichal said the injury affected his delivery. The Giants told him to forget about it and pitch. Juan was in anything but a wonderful mood when the season ended.



JUAN MARICHAL

The Philadelphia Phillies also appear to have problems. Rich Allen, their slugging third baseman, put his right hand through the headlights of his car when he tried to push it. Reports are that the hand isn't as strong as it used to be. Allen, regarded as a superstar in 1966 when he hit 40 home runs, fell to 23 homers and missed 40 games last season.

First baseman Bill White, who severed an Achilles tendon in December, 1966, got in only 110 games last year and hit .250. He has to go some to match the White who drove in 103 runs in '66. Last year he had only 33 RBIs.

Pitching Hurt Orioles

Baltimore, the team that trimmed the Los Angeles Dodgers in the '66 World Series and then slipped because of inadequate pitching, has a big question mark in Jim Palmer, their 15-game winner during the all-victorious campaign.

Palmer had such a bad shoulder that the Orioles shipped him to Rochester, N.Y., in June. He came back in Septmber but with the Orioles about to finish sixth, didn't push himself. Palmer won only three games and had only nine starts last season. His tonsils were removed last December and his shoulder no longer is sore. But he must prove himself again.

JIM LONBORG

Seven teams will be starting the spring with new managers. There's Cal Ermer with the Minnesota Twins, Jim Lemon in Washington, Alvin Dark in Cleveland and Bob Kennedy with the Oakland Athletics, nee Kansas City, in the American League. In the National it's Gil Hodges running the New York Mets, Larry Shepard handling the Pittsburgh Pirates and Lum Harris making out lineup cards for the Atlanta Braves.

And the first pitcher with the nervous habit of putting his fingers to his lips will get a scolding from the umpire.

Whether he throws the spitball or not, a pitcher can't finger his lips any longer, not even in spring training.

Advance Tix For Pine Bush

Onteora High School's basketball fans will have to purchase tickets to Friday's OCS-Pine Bush clash in advance, according to Paul Jordan, OCS Athletic Director.

Since Pine Bush has limited seating capacity, all tickets are on a reserved basis. There will be no tickets sold at the door.

Jordan has an allotment including 50 adult tickets. Any adult interested in purchasing tickets should contact him at home or at OCS.

Bowlers Better So Is the Pay

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Those who knock down the most pins win the most money.

It's as simple as that if you are one of the eight or nine million men and women in America's sanctioned bowling leagues.

These men and women who hold American Bowling Congress cards, bowl once or twice a week in company or neighborhood tournaments. Often the money amounts to a few dollars, maybe a trophy and the annual dinner.

But there are two other groups of bowlers. There are some 32 million who bowl for fun and no money. Their averages run from a low of 80 to perhaps a high of 150. They are men, women and children of all shapes, sizes and ages.

The other group is the 900-member Professional Bowlers Association. They bowl for real money—$1.7 million during 1968.

The top 20 professional bowlers were separated by only five pins per game in 1967, reports the PBA. Their averages were between 212 and 207.

Jim Stefanich of Juliet, Ill., won about $40,000 last year and averaged 236 pins per game to win the $100,000 Tournament of Champions in Akron last April. He rolled 37 straight games of 200 or better to do it, a world's record.

Men in sanctioned leagues have been averaging about 153 while women do well to average 135. "There's hope," reports the ABC, "because these bowlers may have gone up one pin in their averages over the past several years."

Then we put in 6 ventilation ducts all over. (You'll be able to give yourself airs if you own a new VW wagon.)

We also added a whole new suspension system underneath. (It'll be easy come, easy go, all the way.)

And with all of that, the new bus for softies still has the old bus' hardy virtues.

So 1968 should be a good year for all you people who love your comfort. You've been going without the Volkswagen Station Wagon's wonderful gas mileage and storage capacity for a long time now.

But you don't have to deny yourselves anymore.

Dear Abby

He's Just Much Too Much

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old bachelor who has a promising future in the investment business. Last summer I became acquainted with a lovely girl who is now a senior in college, and we've seen each other several times. (We are separated by 300 miles.)

Last month I wrote to her and proposed marriage. I did it in a very business like manner because I didn't want there to be any misunderstanding as to what I had to offer her in the way of security, and what I expected of a wife. For example:

(1) I expect to be served a HOT breakfast six days a week. (On Sundays, I would serve her.)

(2) No hired help until we have a child.

(3) We will have no less than four children.

(4) I shall handle all the money.

I know she received my letter as I sent it registered mail, but I have received no reply. Should I write to her again, or give her more time to think it over?

SAN FRANCISCAN

DEAR SAN FRANCISCAN: Surely, you jest? Perhaps the girl is so overwhelmed with your proposal of marriage that she's paralyzed by indecision—but don't bank on it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is for "HAD IT," the second wife who resented her husband's "ex" calling him at home to discuss the problems she was having with their teen-aged children: I hope you are wise enough to take Abby's advice and remain silent and patient.

I am a second wife who had the same problem. I was blind-jealous and I became furious every time my husband's "ex" telephoned him at home to discuss the children and their problems. I finally put my foot down and told him I wanted no more of it. He promised there wouldn't be. And there wasn't.

Later on, when his 17-year-old daughter got into trouble with a boy, I blamed myself. Perhaps if the girl's mother had been able to confer with the father, that awful mess could have been prevented. I have regretted it ever since.

SORRY IN LEXINGTON

DEAR SORRY. Don't blame yourself. Had your husband been half a man, he'd have continued to make himself available to his "ex" to discuss their children's problems. Since you became furious when his "ex" telephoned him at home, he could have arranged to have received her calls elsewhere.

Whether the "awful mess" could have been prevented had the girl's parents continued to confer, is anybody's guess, but don't blame yourself because your husband abandoned his responsibilities as a father to appease a "blind-jealous" wife.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I may have a helpful suggestion for that mother whose little 4-year-old boy has to wear an eye patch over one eye temporarily. She said the boy was constantly asked by strangers, "What's the matter with your eye, little boy?"

My son also had to wear an eye patch for the same reason. He had one "lazy" eye, which his doctor strengthened by covering the normal eye, thus forcing the "lazy" eye to work twice as hard.

Our boy, too, was bothered by inquisitive strangers, so we taught him to say, "O, it's just a little AMBLYOPIA." Of course, no one knew what it was, and since they were ashamed to admit their ignorance, they just walked away, shaking their heads.

MRS. M. C. IN N. J.

Mrs. Brown—Why don't you ask Virginia — She's a good player, isn't she?

Dear Abby

He's Just Much Too Much

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old bachelor who has a promising future in the investment business. Last summer I became acquainted with a lovely girl who is now a senior in college, and we've seen each other several times. (We are separated by 300 miles.)

Last month I wrote to her and proposed marriage. I did it in a very business like manner because I didn't want there to be any misunderstanding as to what I had to offer her in the way of security, and what I expected of a wife. For example:

(1) I expect to be served a HOT breakfast six days a week. (On Sundays, I would serve her.)

(2) No hired help until we have a child.

(3) We will have no less than four children.

(4) I shall handle all the money.

I know she received my letter as I sent it registered mail, but I have received no reply. Should I write to her again, or give her more time to think it over?

SAN FRANCISCAN

DEAR SAN FRANCISCAN: Surely, you jest? Perhaps the girl is so overwhelmed with your proposal of marriage that she's paralyzed by indecision—but don't bank on it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is for "HAD IT," the second wife who resented her busband's "ex" calling him at home to discuss the problems she was having with their teen-aged children: I hope you are wise enough to take Abby's advice and remain silent and patient.

I am a second wife who had the same problem. I was blind-jealous and I became furious every time my husband's "ex" telephoned him at home to discuss the children and their problems. I finally put my foot down and told him I wanted no more of it. He promised there wouldn't be. And there wasn't.

Later on, when his 17-year-old daughter got into trouble with a boy, I blamed myself. Perhaps if the girl's mother had been able to confer with the father, that awful mess could have been prevented. I have regretted it ever since.

SORRY IN LEXINGTON

DEAR SORRY. Don't blame yourself. Had your husband been half a man, he'd have continued to make himself available to his "ex" to discuss their children's problems. Since you became furious when his "ex" telephoned him at home, he could have arranged to have received her calls elsewhere.

Whether the "awful mess" could have been prevented had the girl's parents continued to confer, is anybody's guess, but don't blame yourself because your husband abandoned his responsibilities as a father to appease a "blind-jealous" wife.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I may have a helpful suggestion for that mother whose little 4-year-old boy has to wear an eye patch over one eye temporarily. She said the boy was constantly asked by strangers, "What's the matter with your eye, little boy?"

My son also had to wear an eye patch for the same reason. He had one "lazy" eye, which his doctor strengthened by covering the normal eye, thus forcing the "lazy" eye to work twice as hard.

Our boy, too, was bothered by inquisitive strangers, so we taught him to say, "O, it's just a little AMBLYOPIA." Of course, no one knew what it was, and since they were ashamed to admit their ignorance, they just walked away, shaking their heads.

A 13 year old girl has always been a tomboy. In a neighborhood in which boys have predominated, she early learned to play touch football and other rough and tumble games. When the next door neighbor's son complained recently that the boys needed another player for a game of touch, his mother suggested,

Mrs. Brown—Why don't you ask Virginia — She's a good player, isn't she?

Joe (disgustedly) — Yes. But she is turning into a girl!

London replied: "Dear Dick—if I did all my work with my feet, I'd keep my promises, too.

Combo of Stars Not Enough

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope is a fine entertainer. The USO is an organization worthy of a benefit performance. The new Madison Square Garden is an impressive auditorium. The combination, however, did not add up to a very happy hour for television viewers tuned to NBC.

Size, Shape Problem

The problem, quite simply, was one of size and shape. Hope, with Bing Crosby and Pearl Bailey, performed on an enormous bare platform in the center of the vast place. While the microphones functioned satisfactorily, the visual part left much to be desired.

Hope and friends were before the cameras during the benefit Sunday night. The tape was edited to be broadcast less than 4 hours later. It was pretty ragged.

The comedian walked onto the stage with a lot of jokes about the city's strike of sanitation workers—which to New York were like Hope's smog jokes when he is in Los Angeles and his GI jokes when he is in Vietnam—more amusing to the folks on the scene than in other parts of the nation.

Bing Crosby and Hope predictably insulted each other with good humor—and some of the time their printed cue cards were highly visible to the TV audience.

Barbara Eden and some chorus boys had a song and dance number that was pretty difficult to handle—Miss Eden had to change costume in front of the audience since there was no place to hide.

Most awkward of all was the fact that all performers, trying to reach the live audience seated around them, circled the platform trailing microphone wires, like restless creatures on long leashes. Much of the time their backs were to the cameras.

The show concluded with a long and unfunny boxing match between Rocky Marciano and Hope—it never came off at all.

Immediately following that special, Andy Williams popped onto the NBC screen presiding over an awards ceremony—the Golden Globes of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association—from the grand ballroom of a West Coast hotel. The facilities, while far from perfect, were a little better for television.

Few Winners Present

There were a large number of awards, and while handled in the classic manner of the Oscars, it went rather fast. Since most of the fun for the audience in an awards show is looking at the celebrities, it was a little disappointing that so few of the winners were present to pick up their trophies.

While most of the awards were for motion pictures and motion picture performances, the association members chose "Mission Impossible" as the most popular TV show of the year. Martin Landau of "Mission Impossible" and Carol Burnett were picked the most popular male and female stars of the medium.

Recommended tonight, "My Father and My Mother," CBS, 9:30-11 EST, original drama by Robert Crean, with Ralph Bellamy and Jane Wyatt.

A reading of Victor Mollo's "The Immortals" will show that these players' favorite hands are likely to be ones that they make in spite of the fact that there is no play for the hand against correct defense.

Here we see Jean Besse, the leading Swiss player, in action. Perhaps his seven heart bid was optimistic, but we are inclined to blame North for Blackwooding away for no real reason. Anyway, Jean found himself in seven, and after the nine of spades lead he saw little chance to make his contract. He knew that West's lead marked East with both queen and jack. They might be doubleton, or there might be some complicated squeeze if East held all the high diamonds and the spade honors. There was no harm in trying.

He rose with dummy's king of spades, cashed the king and queen of clubs and proceeded to run off all his trumps and the club ace as rapidly as possible.

When he got down to playing the club ace, dummy held the ace-jack of diamonds and ten-five of spades. West, holding on to the eight-seven of monds, saw no reason to keep that deuce of diamonds.

East saw plenty of reason why West should have hung on to that card. Jean discarded the jack of diamonds from dummy, and poor East was caught in a criss-cross squeeze. A spade discard would allow Jean to cash his ace of spades and set up dummy's ace of diamonds and set up his seven spot.

Jean Besse is pretty proud of this hand, but he points out that his partner got him to seven on the very next hand and this time there was no miracle. He went down one.

Opening lead—♠ 9

A reading of Victor Mollo's "The Immortals" will show that these players' favorite hands are likely to be ones that they make in spite of the fact that there is no play for the hand against correct defense.

Here we see Jean Besse, the leading Swiss player, in action. Perhaps his seven heart bid was optimistic, but we are inclined to blame North for Blackwooding away for no real reason. Anyway, Jean found himself in seven, and after the nine of spades lead he saw little chance to make his contract. He knew that West's lead marked East with both queen and jack. They might be doubleton, or there might be some complicated squeeze if East held all the high diamonds and the spade honors. There was no harm in trying.

He rose with dummy's king of spades, cashed the king and queen of clubs and proceeded to run off all his trumps and the club ace as rapidly as possible.

When he got down to playing the club ace, dummy held the ace-jack of diamonds and ten-five of spades. West, holding on to the eight-seven of monds, saw no reason to keep that deuce of diamonds.

East saw plenty of reason why West should have hung on to that card. Jean discarded the jack of diamonds from dummy, and poor East was caught in a criss-cross squeeze. A spade discard would allow Jean to cash his ace of spades and set up dummy's ace of diamonds and set up his seven spot.

Jean Besse is pretty proud of this hand, but he points out that his partner got him to seven on the very next hand and this time there was no miracle. He went down one.

Chamber and the NAACP

By HUGH REYNOLDS

A representative of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce told members of the NAACP last night that the chamber has succeeded in obtaining two jobs for the underpriviledged in the past three years. Members of NAACP asked if they could expect two more jobs in the next three years.

Dean M. Kintner, vice-president of the chamber, spoke in place of Manpower Development Committee chairman Herbert Petz.

He outlined the chamber's attempts to secure local employment for the disadvantaged, a program which dates to mid-1965. He spoke of meetings with federal, state and Ulster County Community Action groups. Kintner spoke of "great interest but little action" apparently on both sides as only 22 applicants were originally contacted and only 17 members of the Chamber responded to letters of inquiry from the Manpower Development Committee on job openings within their organizations.

Federal assistance for the chamber program was also discussed (some $300,000 was withdrawn after cuts in the Office of Economic Opportunity budget) with members of the NAACP expressed the desire to bypass "the red tape of government" and work directly with local employers.

Kintner said that out of the original 22 persons interviewed for the program, only two ultimately completed it and got jobs.

Thomas Childs, an NAACP member, said to Kintner, "It wasn't a case or dropping out. There was no action, just a lot of promises over seven months. The people didn't have faith in the program. That's why they dropped out."

Kintner said the chamber would begin another program but this time would employ the services of a full time counselor to find out why the program wasn't more successful the first time around.

Members of the NAACP agreed that the program was vital, not only in Kingston, but nationally, but in its present local scope, it is little more than a token attempt at solving the "most serious problem facing minority groups today."

On the Garbage Takeover

Editorials Critical of Governor

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sharp criticism was heaped on Gov. Rockefeller in newspaper editorials throughout New York State as New York City's sanitationmen, their strike ended under a Rockefeller-proposed plan, carted mounds of garbage from the city's streets.

An Associated Press survey Monday showed a dozen daily newspapers opposed to the state takeover of the city's Sanitation Department. State control of the department was requested by the Republican governor.

Some editorial writers expressed fear that the controversial solution to the strike opened the door to "impossible demands" by municipal workers in other cities.

Others regarded it as a threat to the new Taylor Law, which bars strikes by public employes.

Some viewed Rockefeller's decision as hurting his stature with the voters in the event he becomes a presidential candidate.

The governor "choked in the clutch . . . in the face of threats and pressure from city union bosses," the New York Daily News charged.

The settlement was "an incredible fantasy," the Long Island Press and Long Island Star Journal contended. "The governor wants to take control of our city affairs out of the hands of elected officials."

The Albany Knickerbocker News accused Rockefeller of "demeaning" Mayor John V. Lindsay, who had offered the sanitationmen less than they received under the governor's plan.

The New York Times said Rockefeller had added "insult to the injury he already has inflicted on this city."

"The mayor was right in requesting that the (National) Guard collect the garbage," the Niagara Falls Gazette held. "The governor was wrong in going beyond that request and imposing arbitrary state control over the Sanitation Department."

But the Suffolk Sun, in an editorial in today's edition, contended that Rockefeller's approach was "far more practical, under the circumstances, than Mayor Lindsay's demand that the governor call out the National Guard to pick up the city's accumulated trash."

Other newspapers in the state were just as emphatic in their criticism of the governor.

—"Gov. Rockefeller will be hard pressed to represent himself as a friend of home rule after making the strike settlement a state affair." He has lost points "with voters who now ponder how strong he is as a governor, let alone as a presidential prospect."—The Elmira Star-Gazette.

—" . . . the state's chief executive has appeased union blackmail and invited other municipal unions, everywhere in the state, to conduct similar strikes against the public if their demands aren't met."—The Buffalo Evening News.

Colonial Gardens Bidding March 14

George E. Yerry Jr., chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority, announced that specifications for the construction of 32 units of Senior Citizen housing will be available to bidders Feb. 14 with bid opening date scheduled for March 14. The 32 units which are designed for one person senior citizen occupancy is to be constructed on land adjacent to Colonial Gardens on Flatbush Avenue. The New York State Division of Housing and Community Renewal is providing $524,000 for the construction of the development.

Alexander Yosman, executive director of the Authority said the unique feature of the development is that each apartment will have a sleeping alcove, living room, kitchen and bath, whereas as previously designed single person occupancy apartments had a combination bedroom-living room arrangement. Yosman said that the Authority developed this new design of the alcove bedroom and they have received approval from both the State and Federal Housing Agencies. Since this approval, both Agencies have adopted and recommend this design for all single occupancy apartments under their jurisdiction.

The Authority has under operation Colonial Gardens a 98-unit State operated development which was opened in August of 1953, Wiltwyck Gardens, a 60-unit State operated Senior Citizen development which was opened in January of 1966 and is presently constructing Rondout Gardens, a 135-unit Federally operated development.

Other members of the Authority, who serve without pay, are Benjamin A. Storms, Robert P. Slover, Oscar V. Newkirk and Dorris Dabney Sr. Harry Gold serves as counsel to the Authority.

Orange College to Ask Probe of Drug Story

Orange County Community College spokesmen said yesterday they would ask the district attorney to probe charges by a Middletown newspaper that up to 500 OCCC students use drugs regularly. The college said it did not believe the figures claimed in the February 12 edition of the Middletown Times Herald-Record.

"The college does not believe the newspaper's figures. Information supplied to OCCC in recent weeks by law enforcement officials supports the college's feeling that the number of suspects is far lower," Dr. Robert T. Novak, president, claims.

"If the Times Herald-Record cannot substantiate its accusation, the public should be so informed. The confidence of the people of the county is vital to the effectiveness of the college. Should the newspaper's numbers prove true, the district attorney's investigation would be invaluable in clearing up the situation as rapidly as possible.

"Nevertheless, whether the number of students involved is five or 500, the college pledges to continue its own campaign against drug use and to continue cooperation with police to help eliminate the specter of drugs from the campus and the county."
